It's a project format for creating your own flash movies.
I used a program last year called "swish" you can open .FLA extensions with this program, and then you can save as .swf so you can put it on a website.
http://www.swishzone.com/index.php
Shouldnt be to hard to find a convertor for the extension.

You would need Adobe Flash (not player). There's a bunch of free/cheap utilities that let you make flash movies out there, but I don't think any can open fla files because it's a proprietary format.
