
Subject: What happened to sweet little kids?
Posted by Feetseek on Tue, 18 Dec 2007 02:13:02 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Has anybody noticed that the massive amount of swearing of small kids? I've been extremely shocked listening to stories from my brother of kindergartners saying the "F" word every other minute.

As in the title, I blame the people over the Internet who swear for no reason other than the heck of it. This is my second year in high school and I have gotten through all my school years swearing only once or twice in public, so its not that hard. I just want older people to be more responsible in their speech

Do you guys think swearing has gone overboard??

Subject: Re: What happened to sweet little kids?
Posted by bisen11 on Tue, 18 Dec 2007 02:14:28 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Feetseek wrote on Mon, 17 December 2007 21:13: Has anybody noticed that the massive amount of swearing of small kids? I've been extremely shocked listening to stories from my brother of kindergartners saying the "F" word every other minute.

As in the title, I blame the people over the Internet who swear for no reason other than the heck of it. This is my second year in high school and I have gotten through all my school years swearing only once or twice in public, so its not that hard. I just want older people to be more responsible in their speech

Do you guys think swearing has gone overboard??

Eh, I wouldn't blame the internet on it. I'd say it's more likely they got it from family, especially at that age :/

Subject: Re: What happened to sweet little kids?
Posted by sadukar09 on Tue, 18 Dec 2007 02:16:28 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Feetseek wrote on Mon, 17 December 2007 21:13: Has anybody noticed that the massive amount of swearing of small kids? I've been extremely shocked listening to stories from my brother of kindergartners saying the "F" word every other minute.

As in the title, I blame the people over the Internet who swear for no reason other than the heck of it. This is my second year in high school and I have gotten through all my school years swearing only once or twice in public, so its not that hard. I just want older people to be more responsible in their speech

Do you guys think swearing has gone overboard??
Shut the fuck up.

Subject: Re: What happened to sweet little kids?
Posted by Feetseek on Tue, 18 Dec 2007 02:17:19 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Exactly.

Subject: Re: What happened to sweet little kids?
Posted by nikki6ixx on Tue, 18 Dec 2007 02:19:38 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

That's nothing really new.

In grade 4, if you were a big man, every second word was "fuck" or "shit" ... that is, until your dad swats your ass in front of two little league teams, and fifty parents because of your dirty mouth, then you shut the hell up, and go cry behind the equipment box.

Subject: Re: What happened to sweet little kids?
Posted by Starbuzz on Tue, 18 Dec 2007 02:20:24 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

I would say it also results from TV and the real world.

I remember when I was a kid, my parents would be very protective of what I watched on TV. But they would lower their guard unknowingly here and there and I would get to hear some "bad" words. It works like that in life.

And also from the real world. I would be outside and out of pure randomness, I would see a "gesture" or someone else uttering "bad" words.

Then as you get a bit older, you start to have feelings and what not and you begin to follow up on those things.

Subject: Re: What happened to sweet little kids?
Posted by Dreganius on Tue, 18 Dec 2007 03:20:43 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

I'm 16 now, and I only swear when i'm pissed off. Unfortunately, I get pissed off easily, and will continue to do so for another 12 days.

Subject: Re: What happened to sweet little kids?
Posted by SlikRik on Tue, 18 Dec 2007 09:03:10 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Fuck yes.

I started swearing when I was 7, regular swearer by 10 (and by regular I mean at least once every 5 minutes, cuz I thought I was cool)

It's my theory that swaering is propagated by adults in media, as well as on the internet. Young children hear/read/etc adults using swears and thereby think its cooler or more grownup to swear, when in fact it really just kinda shows a slight sign of immaturity if that's the only word you can think of to use.

Personally, I do swear (on the occasion frequently), extrememly (fuck, shit, etc) if I am mad (especially at a game), but tending toward lighter swears (crap, ass, hell) for general usage, such as to describe a recent crappy movie, or how someone was behaving like an ass, or to place emphasis on the question of what the hell someone was doing.

Subject: Re: What happened to sweet little kids?
Posted by Viking on Tue, 18 Dec 2007 09:08:29 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

nikki6ixx wrote on Mon, 17 December 2007 20:19That's nothing really new.

In grade 4, if you were a big man, every second word was "fuck" or "shit" ... that is, until your dad swats your ass in front of two little league teams, and fifty parents because of your dirty mouth, then you shut the hell up, and go cry behind the equipment box.

Repressed memories?

Subject: Re: What happened to sweet little kids?
Posted by Blazer on Tue, 18 Dec 2007 09:09:03 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Probably sissy parents not laying the smack down. Hell now it's literally illegal for kids to be disciplined in school. Kids get away with murder these days, almost literally.

Subject: Re: What happened to sweet little kids?
Posted by Caveman on Tue, 18 Dec 2007 09:18:05 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

sadukar09 wrote on Tue, 18 December 2007 02:16 Feetseek wrote on Mon, 17 December 2007 21:13 Has anybody noticed that the massive amount of swearing of small kids? I've been extremely shocked listening to stories from my brother of kindergartners saying the "F" word every other minute.

As in the title, I blame the people over the Internet who swear for no reason other than the heck of it. This is my second year in high school and I have gotten through all my school years swearing only once or twice in public, so its not that hard. I just want older people to be more responsible in their speech

Do you guys think swearing has gone overboard??
Shut the fuck up.

Whats your problem man? Isn't anyone allowed to have a opinion about something without you bashing them?

Subject: Re: What happened to sweet little kids?
Posted by Dave Mason on Tue, 18 Dec 2007 12:28:43 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

To be brutally honest, I don't care.

If kids are too damn stupid to see that they sound like a complete imbecile when they swear after every other word then it sucks to be them.

Subject: Re: What happened to sweet little kids?
Posted by Herr Surth on Tue, 18 Dec 2007 12:35:03 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

OH NOES WORLD ISNT AS IT WAS 10 YEARS AGO. WORLD IS CHANGING WTF ZOMG

Subject: Re: What happened to sweet little kids?
Posted by IronWarrior on Tue, 18 Dec 2007 13:19:58 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Dave Mason wrote on Tue, 18 December 2007 06:28 To be
If kids are too damn stupid to see that they sound like a complete imbecile when they swear after every other word then it sucks to be them.

Agree.

I blame the people around the kids.

There is always a time and place for swearing, but not all the time.

Subject: Re: What happened to sweet little kids?
Posted by luv2pb on Tue, 18 Dec 2007 18:10:32 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

LOL at blaming the internet. The problem is parents who are to damn lazy to actually be parents. If I want to fucking swear on the mother fucker internet then fuck you I'm fucking going to. If you don't want your kid learning fuck then keep them away from the internet. If a child is in kindergarden and is using fuck the parents should be put to sleep on the grounds that they are a huge failure at life and had no right to create anything much less a child.

Subject: Re: What happened to sweet little kids?
Posted by Feetseek on Wed, 19 Dec 2007 07:29:30 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

You can't blame parents for every problem kids have >.>

But, unless my town had unusually protective adults, I was never exposed to these words at school. I occasionally hear them on the TV but it never influenced me. That's why I turned to blaming the Internet, cause after it became so easily accessible, my brother and I noticed the kids with very, very dirty mouths at our elementary school.

Subject: Re: What happened to sweet little kids?
Posted by [\[NE\]Fobby\[GEN\]](#) on Wed, 19 Dec 2007 11:39:34 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Yeah I don't really care anymore. I used to abstain from swearing my whole life... but after a while you just don't care anymore. I personally don't swear that much, but I don't mind other people swearing.

Subject: Re: What happened to sweet little kids?
Posted by Dreganius on Wed, 19 Dec 2007 12:23:46 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

In the end, they're just words. Whoop-de-doo.

Subject: Re: What happened to sweet little kids?
Posted by jnz on Wed, 19 Dec 2007 14:28:38 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Feetseek wrote on Wed, 19 December 2007 07:29 You can't blame parents for every problem kids have >.>

A child's behavior, up to the age of 18 is influenced by their parents. If their children are running riot then it's their fault.

Not a lot of parents know how to parent a child, without using corporal punishment.

Subject: Re: What happened to sweet little kids?
Posted by Majiin Vegeta on Wed, 19 Dec 2007 22:04:59 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Feetseek wrote on Tue, 18 December 2007 02:13 Has anybody noticed that the massive amount of swearing of small kids? I've been extremely shocked listening to stories from my brother of kindergartners saying the "F" word every other minute.

As in the title, I blame the people over the Internet who swear for no reason other than the heck of it. This is my second year in high school and I have gotten through all my school years swearing only once or twice in public, so its not that hard. I just want older people to be more responsible in their speech

Do you guys think swearing has gone overboard??

I blame the parents who are to afraid to punish their children in case the kids strike back with child services..

children should love their parents but also fear them when they do something wrong
Kids now days laugh at their parents

Subject: Re: What happened to sweet little kids?
Posted by OWA on Thu, 20 Dec 2007 16:44:31 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

I swear amongst friends but when I'm around my parents I keep it clean because I respect their rules.

Subject: Re: What happened to sweet little kids?
Posted by cnc95fan on Thu, 20 Dec 2007 16:49:17 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

One Winged Angel wrote on Thu, 20 December 2007 10:44I swear amongst friends but when I'm around my parents I keep it clean because I respect their rules.
Likewise. Fuckedy fuck fuck fuck.

Subject: Re: What happened to sweet little kids?
Posted by R315r4z0r on Thu, 20 Dec 2007 17:41:47 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

I blame the parents

Subject: Re: What happened to sweet little kids?
Posted by cnc95fan on Thu, 20 Dec 2007 18:03:01 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Blame Canada! (sorry Canadians, couldn't really resist that South Park line.

Subject: Re: What happened to sweet little kids?
Posted by Muad Dib15 on Fri, 21 Dec 2007 02:10:22 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Quote:I blame the parents who are to afraid to punish their children in case the kids strike back with child services..

children should love their parents but also fear them when they do something wrong
Kids now days laugh at their parents

You haven't met mine then...

Subject: Re: What happened to sweet little kids?
Posted by HORQWER on Fri, 21 Dec 2007 02:36:38 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Internet is the thing that made kids curse and sadukar too lol

Subject: Re: What happened to sweet little kids?
Posted by R315r4z0r on Fri, 21 Dec 2007 02:42:47 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

You know what? I take back what I said. I blame child services. It is their fault.

There are too many laws restricting ways of raising kids. These ways are the ways that the parents themselves were brought up. And thus each generation is getting worse and worse.

If your kid does something wrong, you SHOULD hit him/her!

Subject: Re: What happened to sweet little kids?
Posted by HORQWER on Fri, 21 Dec 2007 03:38:37 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

i could of been fix that problem by not going to the internet but i cant live without internet

Subject: Re: What happened to sweet little kids?
Posted by Craziac on Fri, 21 Dec 2007 03:53:37 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

R315r4z0r wrote on Thu, 20 December 2007 20:42 If your kid does something wrong, you SHOULD hit him/her!

Look, just because you're excessively violent and controlling to people younger than you, doesn't mean we all should be.

Subject: Re: What happened to sweet little kids?
Posted by Feetseek on Fri, 21 Dec 2007 03:54:49 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

R315r4z0r wrote on Thu, 20 December 2007 21:42 You know what? I take back what I said. I blame child services. It is their fault.

There are too many laws restricting ways of raising kids. These ways are the ways that the parents themselves were brought up. And thus each generation is getting worse and worse.

If your kid does something wrong, you SHOULD hit him/her!

Agreed! Spanking was the most effective punishment when I was younger XD. Had it not been my parents strict rules, I very well may be what I despise.

Subject: Re: What happened to sweet little kids?

Posted by R315r4z0r on Fri, 21 Dec 2007 04:05:05 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Stewie wrote on Thu, 20 December 2007 22:53people younger than you, doesn't mean we all should be.

Kids are smarter than you think. If you continue to punish them by either saying "No, don't do that!" or you take something away from them or you send them to their room, they are eventually going to stop caring about what you do and disregard the punishments.

I mean really. You tell a kid to go to his room because he is grounded for the rest of the day, and he says no. What are you going to do? Ground him for 2 days? What's the point?!

Kids who grow up in houses that are "violence free" normally are the people who grow up to be homicidal maniacs.

Subject: Re: What happened to sweet little kids?

Posted by Feetseek on Fri, 21 Dec 2007 04:33:13 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

I think a lot of kids who disregard their parents are like this because their parents gave them too much freedom. By doing this, I think parents hoped to get more respect, but the process goes backwards as the kids grow up.

Anyone have any examples to back this up?

Subject: Re: What happened to sweet little kids?

Posted by Dreganius on Fri, 21 Dec 2007 04:52:25 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Well, here's a nutcracker for yah.

My friend has a mother who loves him very very much. But she punished him for the stupidest things. she banned him from X-Box, MSN, sitting on the couch, and reading. That's right, he was banned from reading books. He was banned from TV and the Computer after he didn't do his homework for one night, when it was due next week. And if he ever violated any of these bans, (outside of school) he would be grounded.

Now, my friend is really depressed and hates his mother. Half the time he's at one of his friend's house, and 45% of the time he's at his grandad's. The only 5% he's at home with his mother is when they're constructing the Bungalow out back for him to live in, away from his mother.

He rarely ever swears by the way.

Subject: Re: What happened to sweet little kids?
Posted by Muad Dib15 on Sat, 22 Dec 2007 16:40:58 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

I blame some of the kids that want their lives to be easier, and therefore take it to court.

A little girl who's parents were divorced, was over at her father's house. He told her to get ready for something and she wasn't done in time or something like that. So he spanked her with a wooden kitchen spoon through her jeans. She told her counselor and her dad was charged with child abuse because she didn't do what she was told and was punished.

I also don't think that parents should have their visitation rights revoked on hearsay. Slightly bad example but, in Santa Clause, Scott Calvin's visitation rights were revoked because his kid was telling people that Scott was Santa. The reason the visitation rights were revoked were because Scott was starting to look like Santa, and Neil thought that was bad for Charlie's mental health. What they should have done instead of straight out revoking his right to visit Charlie, the court should have talked to Scott's doctor about his white hair, abnormal facial hair growth speed, and how he gained 45 pounds in a week. That court was just wrong.

It should also be harder to get a divorce without strict evidence. That is also a problem with kids. They think that they don't have to be married. Religion, Starbuzz, might be bad for some things like world peace, but you do have to admit that people that have a religion like Christianity are much less likely to get divorced and still have stable households than nonreligious people.

My problem is, that I know what I mean, but I can't type it. Hopefully you know what I mean with all this.

Subject: Re: What happened to sweet little kids?
Posted by Herr Surth on Sat, 22 Dec 2007 21:20:40 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

It's funny how every generation thinks the new generation is worse than the old one. Old people complain about the new generation since... I don't know, Babylon? I think there were some quotes from philosophers from Babylon.

Subject: Re: What happened to sweet little kids?
Posted by bat66wat6 on Sun, 23 Dec 2007 16:59:10 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

I learnt to swear from my parents. No doubt. I mean I heard a few bad words from school and heard the first affirmation to sex there, when another kid asked "Are you a virgin?" I got the piss taken out of me then as I had no comprehension of what it meant then...

I heard a lot of words like "Fuck, Bastard, Asshole, Dick-Head" and other strong words when I was about 4.

My Mum is very protective and my Dad is very strict on the swearing account of things. But they had there roughs as Married Couples do and i guess as it's so common to throw in extra words like "Shit and Fuck" to emphasise your'e point they did it unwittingly infront of me.

Naturally thinking it was more grown up and smart or clever in my young age i started to swear frequently. Until my Dad & Mum realised and started to swat my ass to the point of me crying and stuttering in my words.

I got out of the habit of swearing quite thoroughly by the time i was 8. Now even in my teen days at a good old age of 14 i don't swear much if not at all. Unless it's a very important of elevated matter. I also swear frequently when i'm around my mates, but it's really more less strong words like "Crap" and "Asshole".

I just think that many parents swear and teach there kids there bad words unwittingly. There are however a selective few parents who don't care or just see the whole matter as when and where they learn them. If not at school or at home kids will learn these words naturally in the real world.

I once was waiting at some traffic lights with a mate when two kids cam by on a BMX (Couldn't have been more than 6) and shouted "Hey you fucking twats what are you looking at!?"

I had done nothing to them, i didn't even know who they where. They didn't know me or my mate either. They just went past on a BMX on the other side of the road and shouted that at me.

The same happened in a shop in town. The store wasn't that full but a kid at least 4 years old in HMV in town said to me as i went past called me a bastard. I looked at him in a way, as if yo say "That's a bad word! Why did you call me that?" sort of thing. Then his Mum went past and told him to hold his hand in the store.

I find these sorts of things so annoying. As you can't ever really reply to them. You can't exactly tell them off or swear back...

I consider often informing the parents that there Son/Daughter called me something "Naughty" but i think it's not my place to.

Subject: Re: What happened to sweet little kids?

Posted by _SSnipe_ on Mon, 24 Dec 2007 07:41:14 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

try being me where i live i know a kid whos dads a gang banger and the kid is 7 years old already been arrested staved someone beat some kid and slammed his face into the pavement been caught with beer and shit gotten high and drunk and chased kids to stab them and etc all that shit man.....

girls at my old school 12 years old and 13 dating 19 and 21 year old guys....dressing liek sluts and talking dirty.....

teens going to jail for shit the adults do...

everyday thing this worlds getting worse....just wiat to me (16 years old) gets older and i have kids with soem girl think about how the generation then weill be like...worse thne now

Subject: Re: What happened to sweet little kids?
Posted by Dover on Mon, 24 Dec 2007 13:14:36 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

I doubt the internet is the root cause, although I would say it provides kids with a place to cuss their little brains out in relative safty, promoting cussing (maybe).

Subject: Re: What happened to sweet little kids?
Posted by bat66wat6 on Mon, 24 Dec 2007 15:00:09 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Joe.

That's is some pretty extreme stuff there. You must really live in a very depleted area.

Not many people have a valid excuse for there children being "Bad". But if someone has financial problems like credit card debt or there Marriage isn't in order(So to speak), i guess that there childs choice of wordage and language use isn't the most pressing matter.

A parent should always be concience of what there child wants, needs and there state of mind. That is a parents job...there responsibility.

But in life there is so much more that they have to consider and deal with. I mean the Bills, Money, Job. And the other problems adults face can easily distract or interfere.

I am very fortunate though. I have a Mum & Dad who are still together, a moderate income of cash between them and a reasonable house to live in.

My parents are very committed to keeping me and my brothers respectable. They at great financial expense moved houses when i was 6. As the area we used to live in was a bit of a dump.

The neighbors shouted, swore and even cursed at us frequently. If a football went over there fence by accident they would deliberately set there dog on it to chew it up then throw it over whilst shouting "here's ya fucking ball!"

I don't think that parents should hit there kids frequently to keep them from swearing etc. If you start to implement punishments like "No T.V after 5o'clock" if you did something really bad or other things of that category at a relatively young age(About 3-4) i think it can have the same psychological impact on a child to behave.

Without having to hit them physically.

Subject: Re: What happened to sweet little kids?
Posted by _SSnipe_ on Mon, 24 Dec 2007 22:31:48 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

bat66wat6 wrote on Mon, 24 December 2007 07:00Joe.

That's is some pretty extreme stuff there. You must really live in a very depleted area.

Not many people have a valid excuse for there children being "Bad". But if someone has financial problems like credit card debt or there Marriage isn't in order(So to speak), i guess that there childs choice of wordage and language use isn't the most pressing matter.

A parent should always be concience of what there child wants, needs and there state of mind. That is a parents job...there responsibility.

But in life there is so much more that they have to consider and deal with. I mean the Bills, Money, Job. And the other problems adults face can easily distract or interfere.

I am very fortunate though. I have a Mum & Dad who are still together, a moderate income of cash between them and a reasonable house to live in.

My parents are very committed to keeping me and my brothers respectable. They at great financial expense moved houses when i was 6. As the area we used to live in was a bit of a dump.

The neighbors shouted, swore and even cursed at us frequently. If a football went over there fence by accident they would deliberately set there dog on it to chew it up then throw it over whilst shouting "here's ya fucking ball!"

I don't think that parents should hit there kids frequently to keep them from swearing etc. If you start to implement punishments like "No T.V after 5o'clock" if you did something really bad or other things of that category at a relatively young age(About 3-4) i think it can have the same psychological impact on a child to behave.

Without having to hit them physically.

ITS TRUE I LIVE in and grew up around some major gangs and kids here are worst then most of you guys whould so in ur lives and the adults....o boy....to me u can be best perent ever and kids still cna make fucked up decisions....its kinda up to them really.

Subject: Re: What happened to sweet little kids?

Posted by newcheese on Tue, 25 Dec 2007 00:35:24 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Feetseek wrote on Mon, 17 December 2007 21:13Has anybody noticed that the massive amount of swearing of small kids? I've been extremely shocked listening to stories from my brother of kindergartners saying the "F" word every other minute.

As in the title, I blame the people over the Internet who swear for no reason other than the heck of it. This is my second year in high school and I have gotten through all my school years swearing only once or twice in public, so its not that hard. I just want older people to be more responsible in their speech

Do you guys think swearing has gone overboard??

Who gives a fuck if you swear?

The only reason it's bad is because society tells you it's bad. It's the same shit as smelling bad or being dirty, people might not like it but it isn't really a bad thing.

Subject: Re: What happened to sweet little kids?

Posted by R315r4z0r on Wed, 26 Dec 2007 01:17:05 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

It isn't that kids are getting too much freedom, it is the parents who don't understand the meaning of punishment.

Taking away a kids cell phone for a week is not a very good punishment for not doing your homework...
