4GB USB key (For my home server, USB keys use less power than HDDs)

1GB of RAM for my other PC.

AOE III, The Asian Dynasties

Two music books.

And the rest I have let my parents decide on. Suprises are what makes it fun.

I have everything I need.

I told everyone that I don't need any cheap clothes and objects but only expensive chocolates! Toblerone, Cadbury's...yummy! And chocolates from Belgium, France...all expensive stuff.

And yes, lots of those Danish butter cookies. Sweets FTW!

I have a good idea I'm getting mostly DVDs and a new mp3 player. My old Rio hasn't worked properly for a while, so I'm probably looking at a SanDisk.

And CarrierII, I finally get your avatar. Starcraft was my roommate's gift to me this year.

SanDisk? I would count myself lucky. I got a SanDisk Sansa c140 for Christmas last year. It's an amazing piece of machinery much better than those useless iPods.

I already got my K2 '08 Illusion (155, DE, hourglass) <3 Good To Go.

It was centered around an imaginary character that has been used to justify horrible, horrible actions.

I don't mind SanDisk at all. What I need is something that'll last, and Consumer Reports hasn't let us down yet.
