The first 10 seconds were believable until I seen the "water" wobbling effect put into play, then I said "What a fkin' noob".

What "water wobbling effect?"

I didn't see any water at all...

Ryu meant the wobble effect that starts at 31 seconds into the video. The wobble effect tries to recreate the heated air exhaust from the UFO.

It's a pretty impressive video but could have been better. The movement of the trees got repetitive after a few seconds in the first scene. Sound effects were the best and most realistic.

The only "cheesy" part I saw was the lightning. The entire thing though was better quality than some sci-fi movies I have seen.

Bar the lightning strike and what appeared to be an insanely big explosion I liked it. The second one was quite a bit creepier I thought with it being so low to the ground (and it didn't have any really crap lightning!).

That was what I noticed as well. I just thought the waves was him trying to make it looking like he was getting interference.
