Hi there guys/girls. I used to play ren for about one year ago, but then I changed my computer and lost my manual so I cant find my serial number now, and I really want to start playing again. I looked for the game at the stores but they were all sold out. So i wonder if someone could help me with this problem plz. Maybe someone who have quit playing ren could give me his/her serial number

While I don't endorse downloading games, in Renegade's case it shouldn't matter, as the game isn't even sold anymore.

Check your PM.

Every illegal or shared Renegade serial is blacklisted by XWIS, good luck getting online.

They blacklist?

Hmm, thought it wouldn't matter since EA/Westwood don't own it anymore.

Doesn't make sense, why would they blacklist serials if people download it? You can't even buy the game anymore. People downloading it, even illegally, would only boost the community.

I might be wrong, but then enlighten me =)

If you still have your old pc you can look through the registry for it.

XWIS are under contract with EA, so I imagine it's in the terms of that contract, as EA give XWIS money every month or whatever.

You can still buy the game, as part of "The First Decade" pack, you can also buy it in some other pack whose name escapes me, and you can probably find it on www.amazon.co.uk or whichever amazon site you use (can't remember which country your flag is right now, either).

Country: England
Flag:
cnc95fan

If you know how to use Regedit you can copy the registry over, like cnc95fan said. If you want a guide to copying the registry just ask . Then using the Serial change tool you can reverse-encrypt it, and put it in your installer.
Or just copy the registry and westwood folder from your old computer to your new.

Its not very likely that someone is going to give you there serial. For obvious reasons why. I would suggestion making an account on amazon and just buying the game new. Its $5 even most 12 year old can gather that much money in a week.

And if someone who has quit playing Renegade gives you there serial and you go on a cheating spree getting it banned from all the servers and then one day that person decides he just wants to play a few games, he is going to be known as a cheater.

If they've quit playing, they'll either want to keep their serial (if they still visit here) or they don't visit here, and won't see this.

I suggest BUYING THE DAMN GAME.

Warez for the loss...

Get the guy to buy the game, so that EA sees that it is STILL being sold, and that they perhaps should do more on support for it...

The CD key is on the back of the jewel case, not the manual. Also, may I point out copies of Ren as cheap as $2.00 each?

It's always better to have your own key than to borrow somebody else's.

Um, its discontinued. EA makes 0$ from renegade since like mid 2003. The only copies left for sale are what never originally sold, thats why 75% of what you can buy (of whats left) are all used copies. It shows them shit all.

Trooprm, that's untrue. People that buy The First Decade don't do so for all games necessarily but rather for one or two games and are happy to have some extra games. I like to believe Ren is good enough to make people buy TFD and so do EA. The longer EA believes this, they'll keep adding renegade to packs (C&C saga and the likes), hence more players.

Yes, now your right brining in the TFD. but before talking about buying ren for $2 off amazon, EA makes $0 like I said, so it shows nothing, nor do they care. Tho they do care about sales of TFD/Saga, there's no way to tell why people are buying it, most of us prob for another renegade serial, or something else renegade related, the moajority of sales are for the other 12 games

I bought TFD primarily for Renegade. The fact it came with the extra games was the icing on the cake.

There must be at least one online shop in Sweden that sells it or one online shop in for exemple the UK ( http://www.amazon.co.uk/Command-Conquer-First-Decade-DVD/dp/B000E543LI/ref=pd_bbs_sr_1?ie=UTF8&s=videogames&qid=1199692198&sr=8-1) that would ship to sweden?

I hope you can find the game .
