Look, kid. Anyone and everyone who can actually model or texture worth a damn is swept up by one of the big mods within a day. Good luck finding anyone with talent (and will) to do a personal project for you.

You are seriously better off just learning to do it and doing it yourself. I guarantee it.

You also have a better chance of getting strangled by an elephant.

No, just that they are busy with real projects that will benefit the whole community, not just some random idiot who is too lazy to learn how to model a single rifle.

not really, pointing people to place where they can learn shit them selfs IS helping.
that way we might end up with another renegade playing modeler who then can help the big mods.
is just giving everything someone wants helping? specially if that someone is to lazy to learn shit them selfs?

Edit:
why do you think i wrote my skin tutorial (found on the jelly-server skin site for anyone thats interested), yea so people would stop bothering me to make stuff, but a lot of people picked up on it and a lot more people now know how to skin stuff.
