They do go down often, but that part about Sadukar wasn't needed.

I've never seen their downtime...

Pages load slowly during backup. It's not down, just slow, because of the backup. Try to view the forums at another time.

The database is locked every 2 hours and a complete backup of it is made. This means that if the forums get attacked then the worst data loss will be 2 hours.

The downside of this is that when the database is locked everyone has to wait for the backup to finish before they can access it, meaning the site doesn't load.

There was a moment where this site was replaced with a "I'm now fixing the problem that makes backups take so long ... - Crimson" note at one point.

It's every 6 hours now and I believe I have significantly reduced the amount of time that backups take. I'm pretty close to just replacing the box with a fresh start, however... it's old and tired.

sounds like what was my home server, until the HDD got too old.

Am now using my mum's old laptop HDD (waiting for an adapter)

Actually oddly the forums do seem to go "down" but they come back up like 2 or 3 min later.

And what is odd is that it usually happens to me at the exact same time the APB forums do it.

Hmmm... I think Sadukar is so sick of people that he can only add 2 words in his sentence now

I, for one, liked it when he had 4 pages of insults, it was quite funny sometimes.

The forums don't freeze or go down. You just need to buy a better internets.

Yeah, the APB forums are on the same box. When I have a little more time I will consider getting a new box for these sites but for now please realize that I pay for all this hosting with my own money and I'm doing the best I can.

Nothing wrong with the hosting in the first place Don't bother listening to all these complainers, I sorta do agree backup every 6 or w/e hours (which is what causes the slowdowns), is way to often, I would have it set to 24 hours+, but thats just me

They are much better now than they were before, but they still only seem to do backups when I choose to try and open them, must be that the times I am online are the same times its scheduled to do backups... bleh

Indeed, I usually check at 7am when I get up and at 1pm when I often get in from university... no wonder it's always at the same time as the backups... lol.

Anyway, one way to know when the backups are about to start is to keep an eye out for me in the list of logged in users, as soon as I login to the forum a backup is bound to happen

Nah, it's not that annoying, I just go and check other forums in the meantime And it's not every time I check the forums, it just feels like it sometimes

Backups are a necessary evil...
