They admit that buying smaller companies(Westwood for example) was a bad idea that is basically what they say.

EA hate is pointless.

It is like talking to a fire: "OMG YOU N00B STOP BEING HOT!"

Quote:"I think that there's going to be fewer major publishers in 2010 than there are today. I think the second-tier players are going to thin out pretty significantly. The market share controlled by the few major publishers is going to be greater in 2010 than it is today," he said.

I think he's hinting at the reestablishment of the smaller development companies, though still under EA but they have their own entity.

It's proven to be legit when even they admit to fucking up.

Also, EA hate is like hating a fat chick trying to look sexy while wearing something 4 sizes too small.

What do you mean 'legit'?

So EA screwed up some (many) times, that doesn't give you or any one else the right to blast it back into other people's faces. Since it is hard to actually sway EA by saying straight out "YOU MESSED UP!" all the hate is pressed onto other gamers who are just looking to have fun with a game they buy... than that is where all the EA haters come in and are like "OMG NO EA SUX DONT BY THEM GAMEZ IF U DO U IZ NUUB!"

Who the fuck said anything about insulting others for purchasing EA games? Just because some people are idiots doesn't mean that everybody who dislikes EA is some idiot going around and insulting anything and everything EA produces and those that purchase EA products.

I'd appreciate it if you didn't judge everybody based on a select few morons.

Valve won't sell. They'd be too busy lighting cuban cigars with with $100 bills and cutting lines of cocaine with Half-Life money to even consider it.

The old leader of Westwood Studios.

He's probably happy because he's still with EA (aside from the newly acquired Sith Lord eye pockets).

The old leader of Westwood Studios.

He was one of the owners, not necessarily the leader. Brett led most of the development of the C&C series.

Probably none, but the chance of EA and Petroglyph perhaps doing a project together MIGHT happen. Chances of that happening though are slim.

Then again, there's also been several thousand times an asteroid has had a "slim" chance to hit earth that could attack its weak point for massive damage.

For the record, he didn't say it was a mistake to buy Westwood. The mistake was shutting down the studio and trying to move everyone to LA.

Hell, all they had to do to prevent that was checks the forums at that time. I could have saved EA millions.

On that note EA, I am happy to announce Kirby's Konsulting Services...
