K so here is where the problem lyes. Last week i got Crysis but i needed to install an update for windows, so when i did that i was able to play crysis. But ever since that update i have not been able to play Renegade (TFD), first the problem was that i couldn't play renegade in the full screen mode i could only play it in the window mode, so i was told to get some scrips, but when i did that the dhs.dll scrip was bad. so i uninstalled and reinstalled that. With that i had no problem about the error of the dhs.dll, but now i have the problem of it opening up and just staying at a black screen not even going to the the game, its like as if the program it self froze. So if you have any tips or solutions let me know.

You probably reinstalled in the same directory, keeping parts of the scripts. Uninstall again, then reinstall in a different directory. Be sure to follow the sticky in this subforum which explains in 9 steps how to reinstall Renegade for optimal performance!

When removing or downgrading Custom Scripts, don't forget to remove the d3d8.dll in your Renegade directory. Not removing it causes a permanent black screen.
