Using cheats to counter cheats isn't a new tatic. Highly debated as to right or wrong but not new at all.

Dude, are you fucking kidding? That was a joke I added as a quote to our quotebot. MSwindows, the intelligent person that he is, said this...

Quote 283: 12[+ MSwindows 12] How did you know that he was hacking from IRC SF1? --
12[+ MSwindows 12] With counter hacks 12 [+ MSwindows 12] tracers [Added by SF1eagles on Wed Mar 05 15:27:14 EST 2008]

And we do have right click detection, we don't ban based on it though, many people right click because it is more convenient for them.

Always so much shit about St0rm here. (Not saying anything bad about the forums, just some of the posters.)

It's three AM, and most of the forum members are asleep.

There's some red text in the corner of the screen. Someone is clicking the 'report to moderator' button on another of Troop's retarded posts.

Your vote will decide who will answer this message, weather it's someone who already knows the community's leaders, knows the modders and is tested and ready to lead in a drama-filled world.

It's three AM, and Troop has posted something stupid about clans.

Who do you want answering that alert?

"I'm Canadacdn, and I approve this message."

Canadacdn for moderator '08

You're a retard. I was ingame all the time watching ThEOnly4 (you) and recorded that, then I banned you. While I was going to load the video up, ninjahh told me i dont need to, applst0rm found the log.

He killed someone with 788 arty damage, disarming c4 in seconds, same for beacons. And he said "No way I used a repair hack, a havoc hit me so I couldnt "damage" the beacon.

Now stop flaming st0rm because you got banned.

I've used right-click tracers in the past to detect cheaters. I don't see how it can be considered a "cheat" itself as it provides absolutely no advantage. It was quite handy for locating people shooting down the cargo plane, using c4-based hacks, etc.
