Umm..I get about 80+ fps on glacier flying, thats not the point tho (or even closely related so why bring it up?). Anyway, anyone who says ACK isn't good at what he does obviously doesn't know what he does do. He did alot of things for this game/community then some anime and other kids who do shit all here (but fill servers with shit players) vote to get him banned because of what some people said. If he was still around, you would have seen more maps, more community involvment, and he actual played too (half-decently but still), which is ALOT more than can be said for about 90% of the people here.

Aircraftkiller made Country_Meadows in like 2002 or 2003, a long time ago.

And GlacierTS is by far one of the best Renegade maps imo.

I get 60 FPS mostly, except on certain parts, which give nasty FPS spikes. It does take a quad core and an ATi HD 2600 for that though.

They all used to be hosted on C&CDen a while ago. I can't find my work there anymore, presumably due to the fact that I haven't talked to Lion in a long time. That list sounds mostly right, there's probably a couple there that I forgot about over the years.

MadRockz: I made most of the levels for APB, and Reborn has permission to use my work if they want to. I remember giving them the source to BasinTS since it had a more Tiberian Sun theme than the others I've made.

Hey there yourself. Thanks for the kind words while I was gone. I have class projects coming up for 3D modeling that I might put towards use for Renegade, or at least something C&C related. My final senior project next year may end up being a gigantic animation of an Allied/Soviet battle from RA1 using a lot of the buildings and such I worked with in APB.

I let them do their own thing now, they have no interest in what I have to offer. I think that works out anyway because for three years I dedicated a lot of my life and free time to APB and the time I have now is spent on what's worthwhile, like my family and my career ambitions through college.

cause, then some anime faggits come along thinking they are better. Anyway, I now you have moved on to other, newer things, it just doesn't make fucking sense, who do these kids think they are?

And it would be nice, if ALL of the old E3/Beta-Vehicles and Buildings found were in it. E.g. the harv, nod tank, buggy, hummer, arty and stuff....

Download the nitro ^^

<http://www.renz0r-gaming.com/Nitro/Renz0rmod.zip>

Beta harvs will be in, in a next version.

Never seen an arty in the beta assets?

I am not an expert in this whole ACK story but there is usually a good reason as to why a previously banned member may be allowed in. Such things should be let alone and not discussed.

Just a little advice from someone who's been there, done that.

Instead of bitching about something you can't change, why don't you give him another chance, like I am, and if he isn't contributing anything positive (or neutral) to the forums, then we can consider rebanning him.

My animation project isn't started yet. I'm in the last week of my fourth quarter of school so my focus is on final projects including this massive perspective drawing session I have to finish before next Monday night, along with getting all of my work shot and digitized before each class ends.

When I get time to devote to storyboarding and laying out how I want the animation to flow, I'll start putting up concepts and then I'll work on the project itself... and no, I don't have any level files as far as I know. I think I lost all of them in some hard drive format long ago.

That's what happens when your life is the internet for three years. After I moved back home and got into school and my daughter was born, I've really seen less of a point to going online than I used to. It's like I've gone full circle. I used to never go online unless I was at school and now it's the same way again.
