erm, no.
A bunch of people did it when they first announced The Scrin Xmas 2006 with a high res logo and scrin text around it. It translated "The Scrin wishes you a Happy Christmas and a Happy New Year" or something like that.

Here it is:

It says:

"Why are you asking about Scrin language on a Renegade forum?"

If you are REALLY curious, send something to EA...

To be fair, not every topic in this forum is to do with Renegade.

Mine is related to this forum on two aspects, Its C&C and its the Tiberium series.

P.S. Hey Stewie!

Thats not nice you know that. Ur attitude is a classic example of whats wrong with this forum community.

I don't see what was wrong with my posts to provoke this juvenile response.

FYI. You contradicted yourself within the 3rd line of that statement.

It's similar to roman numerals, you just need to work out what's 1, 5, and 10 and then match the number with the corresponding letter.

I started translating it, but then realised you're probably about to ruin Kane's Wrath for me... so thanks for that.
Go eat some herpes or something.

Lol, I was just on my way to go and translate them myself, when I came across this thread.

So what do you guys think this means?

-C&C4?
-C&C3 Expansion 2?
-Prologue to TIBERIUM?

Well the exe for Kanes Wrath is named cnc3ep1.exe. This implies that this refers to the first episode in the expansions maybe?
So, I bet you, the next one will be a second episode, most likely with Scrin.
I doubt it's GDI, they seem to know jack all about the situation.

Not to mention that C&C3 was mainly the GDI story. How GDI suffered from the loss of the Philadelphia and how they managed to continue on without an official HQ.

It has to. Unless you wanted to give them a language that is completely undecipherable to anyone on Earth...

It is the idea behind their alphabet that matters. The fact that it is only the English language with different alphabet letter symbols is irrelevant.

Uh, they directly translated them. So obviously not. :/
It's just like the Alteran language in Stargate, it's supposed to be a precursor to what we know as Latin, but most of the symbols seen on the show directly translate to English. The art department put funny messages onto the props.

Okay, but why would EA waste their time with making a new language with syntax and such when it would have been better spent balancing the game out, or taking out some of the bugs?

Edit: I'm an d-bag. Sue me.

The Scrin font I don't think was made by EA, so I'm guessing EA made a decision and selected this.

EA made the Scrin font. They made it months before the release of the game. Before they reviled the 3rd faction was Scrin.

Apoc made it a contest to who ever was the first to decode the message would get a free C&C3. In fact that message was the way they announced Scrin in C&C3. (Christmas, 2006)
