That could take hours, and no one seems to be in the mood for making a new skeleton system just for the chicken.

isn't there a skeleton already in the always.dat?

does it have to be boned with the chicken bones to do the animations or is there a script or something which overrides the S_A_human animations?

What's wrong with having a chicken that moves like a penguin?

slightly off topic,

as I was saying, would that work? (the previous picture)

I'd produce chicken for KFC by boning them, then I'll eat them in a fat Zinger-style with some hot-wings.

It shows this list of animation stuff with a blank to fill with the name of the anim override anim.
Should I put s_a_human.M_Chickenwalk? or just M_Chickenwalk?

Those animation overrides only work while moving when you have no weapons in your hands OR its held idel at your side.
So if you shoot or crouch you go back to penguin.
