If you could help I would so appreciate it.   I have tried to install Renegade to my iMac using Fusion, but can't even make it to the install screen. I put in the disk and the autolaunch appears, but then when I click on 'install' it crashes... I get the windows error 'Setup has experienced a problem and needs to close' with the accompanying send error to M$ option.   Please tell me this can be overcome - that is the whole reason we bought Fusion was this one game.   My kids (and I) are distraught. Please help...

What version of Windows are you running with Fusion? (I can't pretend to know what I'm talking about with this, but I'll try my best)

Fusion lets me run XP in a window on my iMac. I've been able to get the game installed, but I'm having trouble with the mouse. There is a setting in the FUsion directory I must change, but I don't know my way around a mac yet...

For those interested, the program seems to run fine on my mac, I just have to tweak a few settings.   It should be easy for someone who is familiar with a mac, which I am not yet. Bodes well for those considering switching over to the light side of the force.

I imagine on modern macs it would function under bootcamp. Is that an option?
