Everyone knows that when your harvester gets stuck, you can push back on track with a vehicle. Everyone also knows that if you blow up an enemy harvester, they will just get a new one. So why not push the enemy harvester and make it get stuck rather than blow it up? If you really get the enemy harvester stuck, they can't get a new one because the stuck one is still alive, and they won't get as much cash! YAY

I suppose but the "stuck harvester" bug is something that is going to be fixed. So any strategies developed around it will be temporary.

That's really cheap. The best thing to do is stick proxys to the harvy and let it blow up enemies.

hehe unfortunatly that tactic would never work unless you got the harvi stuck where the enemy could defend it, otherwise some n00b on your team will keep shooting it with their gun and get the points

I hate that!This shows the people who are just out for points. If you let it stay stuck, they'll never get another penny!!!Course, it is sort of gentlemanly to destroy your enemies stuck harvester....but Gentlemen don't belong in this game!!!

Yes, it's infuriating when both harvesters get stuck - but even moreso when only your team's does. However, in one game, both team had apparently made up their minds to keep both harvys out in the fields. I had to go out and actually repair the enemy harvester because of people from my team shooting it when it's nice and stuck. In the same game, I managed to get the other team to kill our harvy by dancing my I tank back and forth in front of it and shooting at their mammoths. Eventually it went down (then the new one went right back and got stuck again :mad .

LOL. Yeah, I've had that happen to me too where the engis repair me up with there guns while i blow their brains out. Seems to happen most when I'm in the enemy base trying to C4 a building.
