Heh, whether or not you are for gay marriage or against it... this has got to be one of the worst arguments I have ever seen in favour of banning gay marriage.

I will give it props though... one of the best comedies I've seen in a long time.

Oh no! Kids will know about gay marriage! Again!
It's worrying that people have such negative opinions on other peoples choices that do not affect them.

It's against Gay Marriage, and it's ridiculous. I'm not so sure why people do care so much about what others do. It's not as if talking about people having equal rights is something bad.

I'm not saying ban gay marriages, but from what i've seen on that video, they are going to force people to accept it, by forcing it on them in schools, which, is like teaching religion in schools...

Seriously though, people can hate gay marriage all they like, they just shouldn't be able to stop it, so forcing beliefs on them is idiotic.

It's alright depending on where you live, but it's not what it used to be.

I don't know what the legal specifics are in this case, which court ruled against the vote mentioned in the video, federal or state?

Anything about gay-marriage, or anything 'gay' should just be taught in a proper sex education class. Both sides of the arguments should be presented, and left to the students to decide.

In my high-school, it was all hetero, which is a mistake in my opinion. At least we got taught all about contraceptives, birth-control, etc, something that many American students will not learn.

Outside of religion, I don't think there are morals to be wronged in gay and lesbian relationships. One thing for sure is that it doesn't correspond to the natural order of things.

Or the gay dudes will be knocking you up, and getting you in a shotgun marriage. The best part is, in a lot of countries, there is no mechanism for gay divorce, so lucky you.
