I'd be way more eager to "check it out" if I didn't have to register first.

^ Ditto. Also, an explanation of what your forums are for might make people more inclined to visit them. Is it a modding site, a general gaming site, a downloads site, a video hosting site or something else? You really have not explained anything, and the website does not give any information without registering, and nobody will register without knowing what they are signing up to.

Thank you for the advice, i am going to change some stuff around.

Changes

-Don't have to register to see the topics, but have to register to post in topics

-Add some videos (thanks for that advice!)

Ok, Guests can now see topics, but cannot reply in them!

Does anybody know how to put a video in the post?
