The problem with glowing when it goes on the tiberum is a problem to me tbh because usually when you're "glowing"(I don't know what to call this exactly so I'll go with your word) you are being healed by the tiberum and obviously the chem warrior does not get healed from tiberum.

Just because you haven't got a reply it does not mean you were ignored. Patience.

If he truly ignored you, ask again. Most people here aren't mean or rude, but I doubt that all users here have time to check the forums and work requests all day. There is only 7 hours time between your two posts.

That being said, I second samous's suggestion. If it really does not take very long to change it then we'd appreciate the effort.

Awesome job with the characters so far

These starwars droids where already made but not rigged to a charachter(flamethrower etc). So all the modeling has been done, texturing, uvw unwarp and go on. What you want is models from scratch.

New models cost time and that is basically the biggest problem
There is nothing wrong with your requests. Only this is a big request

Well, I need to know what names to change (and what to change them to) to have it work as a replacement for any character, preferably nod chaingunner. (I also had an idea for all nod to be droids )

Thanks for the help.

First of all the mesh in the gmax file (excluding bones) have to have the name of character example C_AG_NOD_MGO which is the Minigunner Officer and the when you export save the file as the same thing.. hope this is clear to you, you can view the other names with XCC Mixer all multiplayer models start with C_AG_
