I think that RenHelp.net isn't getting the upkeep it should since I left the community and I'm thinking of handing it over to someone else. If anyone is interested (and your someone I know or someone this community recommends) I'll give you full FTP access so that it can be copied over to where ever you need it.

I sent this offer to Crimson but no response after 3 weeks.

EDIT: If need be I will create a poll of the most wanted people but beware....ownership of this site comes with dire, dire consequences.

Nope, money isn't what I was referring to. The person I give it to will be given half of an amulet and a long and horrid journey followed by spending the night in a haunted house.

I've been Oblivion165 for a decade now and a few weeks ago I ALMOST had to change my name just to hide from the Renegade community. I love you guys but I'm not a modder anymore! I don't even have Renegade, the mod tools or the 3ds max plugin installed. I've moved on but still 1-4 people a day come to me for help with Renegade, most I've never seen or heard of before and it will drive you mad.

I'm over at the Left4Dead community now, it's not even close to a home like this place is but I needed the change.

If you have not found anyone interested in taking this on I would be willing to maintain and update it. I have extensive PHP experience on multiple sites. I also have access to a high quality webserver already, so it could be migrated as quickly as the DNS will update. Let me know if your interested.

what's funny is that he IS the author of some of those tutorials.

I'd totally take it, but I'm not up for the responsibility, and the site would probably die within a week of my ownership.

Perhaps IronWarrior could somehow add it to his Game-Maps website. RenHelp is a nifty site which had solved quite a few of my problems with Renegade, and it'd be a shame to see it go.

On behalf of WW-Gaming I'd be willing to handle the upkeep of RenHelp.net. In fact WW-Gaming has something in store for the entire Renegade community but I'm not going to reveal what until I get it all sorted out. But I'm confident that we could handle and improve RenHelp. By improve I mean: some better organization, collecting more information and storing it, etc. I also have an idea to integrate it into an "Article System" which would give it a better look and better organization. Plus, it'd be much easier to manage that way too.

As is, its not going anywhere. I just feel that it does need people with the passion to take over it and after a few days ill make a poll with everyone that offers to help. I think its best that the people who use it get to determine who owns it.

Ah very interesting.

I understand the problems of keeping a website updated, it is really hard to find staff who have the time to work and are trust worthy as well.

I've started a few college courses last month, so a lot of my time is dedicated to that now, so I myself don't have the time to give the sites that they need.

But if you ever have to stop paying for the site or need a web server, then I can always take over that, my web server has unlimited bandwidth and unlimited space and a few more unlimited things or if you just need a other admin to keep a eye on the site, then I can do that, I always have time for managment and maybe Game-Maps and it's small staff can offer that.

A good old PR drive could help both of us get our sites in people faces again and maybe do a staff recruitment spee to help to keep RenHelp.NET updated.

Maybe some type of partnership between the sites and/or with danpaul88 help, he has shown a interest in keeping the site updated.

I have put this forward to my staff to see what they think about it.

I would be more than happy to be a co handler of the site but i don't think ppl would vote for me.

But i do think that the admins here should take it over well cause they have this forum up to date and all why not.

Hell i would take the site i have nothing better to do really i work come home sit on here work on website's and forum's.

I do have time to sit and update a site that i use a lot almost every day i find something in it.

I will take the site.

Brandon, the leader of World Wide Gaming, has given me permission to speak on his behalf about this matter.

As such, I wish to further express WW-gaming's extensive interest in acquiring this site. We have all the means necessary to run it and are looking for something to draw more people into our community. There are plenty of people in our management that can take the site and make it much more visually appealing and organized.

Other large sites like Game-maps have many other things going on that they would need to manage and attend to, but since WW-gaming is a basic new-ish community, there aren't as many priorities, therefore managing and upholding Renhelp.net would become a very high priority for our management.

That is why it is a smart decision to choose Ww-gaming to host the site.

As R315r4z0r said, I have given him permission to speak and act on my behalf while I'm moving across the country again.

WW-Gaming wants to run RenHelp because we have the free time, a good amount of faculty members, and dedication in our work. WW-Gaming is planning to open an alliance. What all features that will consist in this alliance is still under debate. We don't plan on opening a network anytime soon as we're busy building our own Sci-fi MMO game. However, we have plenty of spare time in between and we have plenty of resources that I've been meaning to offer the Renegade community.

I know some of you guys were under the impression that WW-Gaming died back in December but that was slightly exaggerated. Most of you guys don't know who we even are and that's okay, just keep in mind our intentions are to keep RenHelp running and to enhance the site to better serve the users.

Webpace and a domain name aren't exactly the most expensive things to get, as long as your website doesn't become too popular. I think oblivion just wants someone to keep content up to date.

Simple answer to that? get staff right?

I would be more than happy to update stuff there for him.

I think maybe like 2 or 3 people would be able to keep it up to date with no problems.

That's what I told him too. Personally I really like the existing site design, all it really needs are more regular content updates and perhaps minor new features such as user ratings on tutorials. Add regular content updates to that, and perhaps some tutorials based on APB / AR / Reborn modding and it would be better than ever.

That's all he wants and that's all it would take. Just like he said, whoever gets the chance to take renhelp.net over, he'll give him/her/it full ftp access to download the files so they can re-upload them wherever they choose.

In my experience of transfers, it will take about 20 minutes to make the transfer complete...or depends on how many files he's got/how big the entire site is >:|

But, an average site only takes about 20 mins tops to transfer. DNS will take it's usual DNS transfer time.

My opinion is that we would get multiple people as staff, and not leave it up to 1 person to do all of it.

I could, for one, host it, danpaul could code it (Like he said, he's good at PHP), We would need staff to keep the site up to date and we would need people willing to write tutorials.

Just throwing in an idea, but like I said, willing to host it if that's the problem (and take care of the domain)

Oblivion, I really wish you was given the moderator permission mask, it seems that you really wanted it and it could of kept you here. It sucks that you're not around anymore man.

I don't know if you know him or not, or if he would be interested, but you could do allot worse then IronWarrior to maintain the site. He's a good guy, not really allot of coding knowledge or website design, but he'll keep it updated with tutorials.

Probably wouldn't be able to do anything sophisticated, but he has the same passion for w3d that you once did.

I wont lie, that was a kick in the nuts

I was Voted in, Crimson said I was in and then...bam! Nut shot.

Good times, good times.

EDIT: As for IronWarrior: Yep good guy but I am all for the community voting it in.
