Heres a great wya to get creds... Buy an armored transport, and just shot tanks and buildings while moving around. You get insane creds, and people don't bother to attack you msot of the time because its jsut an armored transport. It's cheap, fires extremely fast, great way to get creds.

Well I believe there is a cheat out there or a trainer. It just it is kept very well secret. For the fun of it ...I decided to open the always.dat file. Took about ohhh 10 to 15 minutes. I suggest you dont try this if you got a slow machine.I decided after it was open to do a search on cheats.Well to my surprise, there is INDEED a cheat for that game. There is a section that says:Unlimited ammo, Get all weapons and also a god mode. How to activate this ????? Unknown. I could not find a way to make this work. So there is a way to cheat on that game. It is just no one knows or someone do know but do not share.I personally dont believe online cheat..take the fun away and not worth it. Like Unreal love the game but now ..pointless to play. Just like Quake3 also.But when it come single player...well I dont mind at all. It is fun and you get to do and kick some butt in any diffrent way you wish hehehe. But you know for the people that curse others saying Lamer or Get a life for asking a single mode cheat. You know what....you would be the first one to grab it. Cause why would you come in and read this forum???Single mode cheating is nothing wrong. And also I bought the bloody game and I dont mind at all to cheat the game. My choice my money. Not you to come in here and complaint and insulting people about it. Dont be an idiot and just leave if you like people asking for a cheat to have fun or help them out on some level. Does not hurt you at all and it our lost how we play the game. Not yours. So you want to act like a child and called names to people...??? Well make a bloody new forum about the ONLINE PLAYING CHEATING. Not the single mode people.Cripes you get alot of kids with no brains sometimes. Then again...they speak without thinking. But go behind the curtain in all this and they are doing the same.My 2 worthless canadian penny of speaking out.ps: Hakker if you got that trainer..share it. If it is a trojan dont be an idiot.

That's a great way to waste credits. And APC's are the first things you destroy, you never know what's inside. It might be a nasty present.

That's stupid, you spend 500 on an APC you have no tactical use for and just shoot buildings with the machine gun. It gives you points and credits but people will just blow you up. You're certainly not gonna make back your 500 before dying.

Thats not true if you are very good at controlling the APC it does become very useful, it's speed and handling is very very good you can't kill a tank but if your smart you will attack it and dodge u way back to base repair and go back out and do it again.

Agreed - the APC has been improved since the beta, but it's still like driving with tires made of ice cubes on a frozen lake.

i've always been interested in looking through the code. i used t play with the .ini files all the time (veterns of C&C know what i'm talking about). anyways, how can i open the always.dat file? i know that you can open .dat files in note pad, but they don't always come out in "english". do you use a special editor, or what? i'd like to play around with the settings, cause it never hurts to know more.

If i need money, I do the following.GDI: get Sydney for 150, and go for stealth tanks. with proper strafing you can take out a stealth and get a quick bit of cash.Nod: Stealth, cost 400 but I go out and place timed c4 on everything!! The popular targets are MRL as they blow up with one. Snipers are fun to take out with C4 too.

I take out more infantry with my APC than any sniper in the game. You can run them over or place a few headshots to kill them.(Its the best anti-sniper choice you can even destroy light armored vehicles. I loooooooooooooooooove the APC.

I'd love the apc too if I only played in multi-practice, which is the only way that piece of crap handles well.

You know, I find the "tap the key" method to work the best when controlling the apc and the humvee..... When you bear down on those keys, it feels like driving on ice. Little taps on them seem to do much better....except of course when the Evil Lag gets ya down....

I prefer light/medium tanks over APCs. They are about as fast, have better turning, do more damage and are better rushers (a medium tank can usually drive all the way up to an Obelisk, but an APC gets blasted before it gets there and you have to run the last bit). The only downside is that they can't take 5 people - and that they cost a bit more.

Also, it depends on the server... You have to turn ahead of time for the server to register a turn when you want it. Tapping the keys works in games with up to 300 ping or so... Any more than that is pointless to play in anyway so...My hypothesis is that the server "knows" where all the vehicles are...Example:In Tribes 2, you sent in where you have moved to the server, then the server sends the other people the new location info.In C&C renegade, you have toe tell the server where you want to move, and you actually start moving only as soon as the server gets the info you sent.

please guys, this is the tacs and strats section. i've enjoyed the fact that there are fewer flammers here and most that post here either want to learn or want to share their strategies. yes, i know there are far fewer posters than in the general section, but even still, the flames are few and far between in this forum. please keep it that way. if a particular player thinks that the apc is a good multipurpose vehicle for racking up some big kills and bucks, then so be it. it's his choice and he chose to share his "secret" with the rest of us. if you haven't gone out in an apc and done what he's done, then you don't know. so try it and share your experience with the group. and please, keep it positive and constructive!...

And let us not forget that it was the mighty APC that ended up killing Cliff Hicks and won that player a free copy of Renegade!It is a great vehicle, might and strong, and can do so very much on the field. From bring a person to his/her target to taking a whole squad of people to a major battle saftly!And sniper killing, and running over people!It is a great beast! Never to be trifled with!So if you see an APC...worry...then run!Peace
