My girl never has been in the snow nor ever left a city her 18 years of her life I googled some photos but they have snapshots of mountains but it does not compare to peoples real photos from the ground and such....when I was little we was driving threwh the California mammoths mountains we were driving up the highway and next to use left and right was just snowy hills but when we started driving up hill we went over the hill and saw the most beautiful secenrey ever all flat land of snow all around use no cars on highway mountains all around use but far back so it likes like a flat land with mountain walls and on top of all that Christmas trees all around like a forest but not as much and was snowing a LOT but soft snow and sky was dark Grey and covered.

so my question is Since i cant take these my self can anyone post there most beautiful snow photos and post them here so I can show her? I mainly want the one from ground view but not ones of mountains from far but ill take those aswell.

Rent a movie with allot of snowy sets and watch it together. The only movie that springs to mind currently is "Dumb and dumber", it's not a great movie. But if she really has never, ever seen any snow she might like it. If she doesn't, and she snuffs your efforts, then ram her head in the freezer and keep it in there for an hour or two!

I know... but there's a topic in spam fest related to this. It's a joke, don't take it serious, especially you Ssnipe .

I'm waiting to get a point and shoot. No special photography goals for me. Now to just see if I can't get the camera bid to remain low on eBay.

Idiots really don't care to wait until the last minute to bid. No, they do it hours early... and now the camera is too high for me. Meh.

You need someone from New York ... they have gotten all the snow so far. We have not gotten anything here yet worth taking a picture of in Wisconsin. Hell, were to thanksgiving and I still haven't pulled the snowblower out or put my car away yet. Not that I am complaining mind you, I'm all about a lack of snow.

Thought I had some better pics sittin in my photobucket album, but I guess not. They're probably sitting around on my other PC. I'll check later. But for now, here's a random pic I took a few years back whilst I was inventing the sport of snow golf.

Unfortunately I live in a decently large town that's not in the middle of no where, so I don't have a ton of mountain pics.

I know right?! The idiots NEVER learn. I see eBay idiots who have been there for YEARS with lots of feedback still bid early 4-5 days before the listing ends?!

Is there not one brain cell or a neural network inside their heads that would suddenly light up like a Christmas tree and tell them they they are idiots for doing it? Bunch of apes.

Good lord, let's think about HOW MUCH money we would all have saved if those idiots waited for the full 6 days of the listing and then dropped their bombs with 10 seconds remaining! But NO! No, No, No...idiots HAVE TO bid early making other monkey-see-monkey-do idiots to throw in their bids as well.

If Earth was a spaceship, I would have those rascals thrown out the airlock!

Yeah because no one ever makes a second account on eBay to raise the bid of their own item so that it doesn't go for too cheap..
