I'd like a good quality website to upload some digital photos to, and some videos. kthxbai.

n00bstories has a great image hosting service if you just make an account on the website.

As for video, maybe try YouTube?

<http://www.photobucket.com>

It also lets you host videos. Not only that, but it has fully customizable profiles and albums as well as a web-based image editing program.

And when you link images to other sites, it just links the image, unlike some other sites that make you load the entire website making the image take 10x longer to load.

I love photo bucket Cause you can change settings about the way it looks set albums and passwords and if its private and such and the images are high quality dont lose it inc you can rename them and get all the type of codes for them to post them and mass selecting them to post

Imageshack.us dont have really much nothing of that just upload image theres link done cant really organize nothing
