I'd hold my breath on the "improved" part, it was perfectly fine how it was.

No ETA yet, I'm still waiting to get the hands on the domain name, got no reply yet, if I get nothing by friday, I buy a new domain till I can get my hands on the old one.

We still have the same saved, but most likely we will get the new one online soon we get the domain.

For now, you can view the tutorials here:
<http://forums.mp-gaming.com/index.php?s=ad6e7688de99e8b2873c7a3f2b083e16&showforum=285>

You may add new ones as well, any new ones you add will also be added to the new RenHelp.NET site when it goes live.

Sorry people, this was very unexpected.

lol, i like the way you think thats actually a good idea, hopefully they won't lock them...
gets out lock-breaking-keys-just in case

I assume tutorial authors will be notified by email about replies? Otherwise it's going to be pointless replying to existing tutorials to ask for clarification or help if the author does not realize people are posting stuff to it...

Last I checked, the authors of existing tutorials are listed as "Guests" on the forums...thus making email notification pointless.. lol

To be fair, even without the authors, there's enough people on those forums that know what they're doing to help with any questions raised about any modding tutorial on the site.
