Is it ment that when you repair an arty with a repair gun that lot of black smoke comes out that fucks your fps when your close and also how it shows fire/flames come out of where your beam hits? that dont seem right

That happens if you aim your repair gun at the tyres...

Probably deliberate.

Its the surface effect for laser (I think), and the reason for the FPS drop is because every time a new 'projectile' hits the tyre, it spawns another emitter. Because the repair-gun fires very rapidly, the emitters are spammed.

XD

I only feel a three FPS drop if I do that...

Yeah there is. We put it into our bug tracking list which tends to have items even fixed accidentally.

I didn't say that all the fixes would be looked into, just that they would be entered into our bug tracking system for possible later fixage.

I agree that it's not an important issue, yet it's good to have all issues listed. A big part of our todo list is "Things to do after 4.0" for a reason.

It might be fixed with their new Shaders 4.0, but don't quote me on that one.

You could just turn down your surface effects settings.

Do what I do then. I simply run it on the lower settings, install Resurrection (fps boost for me at least), and for better graphics, I use HD textures/whatnot.

Or you could just buy a cheap vcard (30-60 bux) that can actually handle ren, so u can stop bitching about every FPS causing problems ingame which is caused by not really a bug in ren, but by your lack of a video card

I read about 8-10 topics today and in over half of them I saw you bitch about fps :/

It is either speed or quality, or pay, or waste your time
