R315r4z0r wrote on Sun, 22 February 2009 16:36My shift key = crouch.
Walk = middle mouse button.
I have chaged alot of buttons myself.
Free Aim = Left Click
Fire = Right Click
With it set like this i find it so much easier to aim. (try it)

I use the arrows on my keyboard so I have changed these buttons.

Jump = Page down
Crouch = Ins & page up

Any thoughts or ideas? have you changed your settings and find them helpful? Share it.

Traditional keys for an FPS, though I use my right click for free aim and press my middle mouse for alternate fire.

Mine is very different than the norm. It's the "old fashion" way. I use the arrow keys to move, "\" to crouch, Enter for action, (right) Shift for jumping, and (right) Ctrl for walking, though I never use it. I'm right handed, so I use my three middle fingers for movement and my pinky for the other four. It might not be the most "efficient" setup since my thumb could be doing something, but this has actually worked well for me, and it's out of habit.

If I put free aim on the right button then it just feels empty. I have it on the left button because my index finger is the best one.
It has the strongest and most accurate link to my arm out of the other fingers (including middle).
So with it I can have maximum precision when using free aim.

I have no clue in my mind how you play this game :/

All default controls except for free aim and the chat keys.

Free aim = right click pub chat = enter

team chat = backspace

I have my free aim mapped to right mouse button and just today mapped my zoom activate button to Q.

It was previously the middle mouse button; this was also a roller button and it slipped a lot during clicking for zoom. Mapping it to Q is amazing...I have it right there near my WASD keys and it gives great control. I use the middle roller button for zooming in and out.

Was able to get some nice scoped long range kills this way quickly.

Primary setup:
All standard but Shift being crouch

Secondary setup:
Right click = free aim
Middle mouse = secondary fire

For some wierd reason i use 2 setups because hitting the mouse wheel is a bitch on my mouse, thats just for pubs when I feel like sniping. Depends on my mood.
