Not really sure where to put this since it's not really a support topic (in the sense that I don't need help with it), and it's not related to modding or Renegade, so this seems the only sensible place for it. If moderators think differently feel free to move it.

Anyway, I have noticed this happen a few times now, and wondered if anyone else had noticed it. Sometimes when a topic has a reply it still shows the total number of replies as 0...

As you can see, Goztow has replied to this topic created by KaTaNa, but the number of replies is still shown as 0. It also causes the new topic icon to not show up, even though there ARE new replies since you first looked at the topic.

This also happens on the renforums skin. I got no clue, really, as to why. In my experience, FUDforums ain't the greatest forum package around.

My server has issues. It's not FUDforum. It would take too long to explain. I ran a consistency checker which should have fixed any small problems like those.

Probably has something to do with the server timing out and partial page loads, as that happens quite a bit.
It also prevents me from viewing the latest post to a thread; I can clearly see the forum telling me who the last poster is, but it refuses to show the post of that user and when I check the thread it looks like the last post is from someone else.
