Wer könnte mir helfen und Tipps geben?

Problem ist:

Ich wollte das neue MSN downloaden und es ging soweit.
Es gefiel mir nicht und ich wollte mein altes MSN Windows Live Messenger Beta 8.5 wieder installieren. Dann kam dieses Fenster und ich habe alles vom neues Windows Live Messenger 2009 gelöscht (jeden Ordner.. einfach alles). Danach wollt ich Windows Live Messenger Beta 8.5 wieder installieren und die Nachricht kam wieder...also hab ich bei "Software" nachgeguckt ob da noch irgendetwas mit "Windows Live" ist aber dort ist nichts.

Nun frage ich mich: Wieso steht dort im Fenster, das ich "Windows Live Messenger" deinstallieren soll, obwohl ich es doch komplett gelöscht habe?

So sieht das Fenster aus -->

At this point imo there should be a forum for speaking other languages since no one seems to follow the rule that you have to speak English

Umm, you need to check the rules of conduct. :-s

This does belong in tech support though.

I presume there are still some trays in your Register of the newest MSN Messenger. Did you removed the newest MSN Messenger by just removing the folder? As that could be the cause. A corrupt uninstallation could also be the cause.

I think a Registry cleaner could fix this problem easily, or by removing all the keys in your Register which are removed too if you would uninstall the newest MSN Messenger.

I don't know the keys though, but you might find some information on the Internet about it.

I can understand German decently btw.

If the above is the cause (which could be) you should try CCleaner
Free and good tool to clean your registry and temp files etc.

CCleaner doesn't remove/fix much in the Registry.

I myself use Registry Cleaner (next to CCleaner).

Registry Cleaners suck imo, as long as you know what you're doing you can clean the registry yourself
