I believe i read somewhere that sending them back to somalia would be a violation of human rights since they have a severe penalty for piracy in somalia.

But what do you think should be done about them?

I think Russia going all out apeshit on Somalia would be perhaps the funniest thing I've ever heard of.

Problem solved and the world gets a giggle. GG pirates.

I think the navy needs to wipe a couple of them out in a very obvious (read: large explosion) way, and make those one or two pirates serve as an example of how the merchant fleet will now be defended.

So it's settled. Russia needs to annihilate the entire Horn of Africa region.

Somebody get Scrin in here, he might actually prove useful with this.

I think that the high-velocity lead solution works nicely. For more pirates, use more lead, delivered cranially. Possibly some torpex, in 500-2000lb suppository form.

Their own "government"- impotent as it is- will do nothing, paying the fuckers obviously doesn't make them bugger off (gee, who'd have thought?), so what else is there left to do? They don't even care what's on the ships they attack- their so-called "retaliation" for the rescue of the Maersk Alabama's captain was to attack a ship carrying humanitarian aid destined for, among other countries, Somalia.

These people are poorly informed, dirt poor, and- worst of all- feel empowered by doing harm to others. The warlords they call their leaders encourage these attacks, claiming any justification they can; piracy is the entire basis for the Somalian economy now. The situation has degenerated beyond a point where nonviolent intervention can possibly work- because if such intervention should be attempted, they'd attack or kidnap anyone who came to talk to them.

It's a sad, pathetic situation, but it is not one that can be handled by talking. Blow the pirates away, blow the warlords away, then send someone in to talk. Violence is literally the only thing these folks understand now.

So Goztow take a boat with lappy and internet and start banning pirates!

I'm not saying they should, but I think it's mainly our fault for actually giving them money, not arming the ships with defences and depleting their fish stock.

If I was living in the states that they do, with no way of feeding myself or my family. I would turn to piracy with no problem.

It's totally our fault. Oh well.

By the way, I'm assembling a crew to go hijack a few ships a month and ransom them off for epic profit. No sailing date has been set for now but I'm still short a few crewmembers- any takers?

I'd join, but being on a ship populated only with tanned, hairy chested dudes in shorts and t-shirts and funny hats would only mean that there'd be a lot of buttpiracy going on.
