I think this is the first hud that I actually like more than the original, all the others seem big and bulky to me but yours is sleek. I too, don't like the radar though.

So, he stole your idea to copy someone else's work? Isn't that a little arrogant to assume ownership of the idea, even though your idea was to imitate someone else's work? conceited even really...

Look, the battle over the HUD's has gone on for longer then you realise, infact much longer then most remember actually, seriously.

Just let it go man, feuds over who made it first, who had the idea first, stealing eachothers work never end well. You would do better to help eachother. You both obviously want the same end result...

It's not like you guys are doing this for a job or for a commercial project, pull your resources instead of being petty to eachother.

The text blending is font smoothing. It'll do that if the font is large enough. Notice how his font is larger than normal.

As my siggy said, I'm no member of the TT team so I can only base my replies on things that were written down by them in the past. I suppose it'll be he same for buildings / vehicles. I'm not sure if they'll really work per character / building / vehicle or if they'll make groups, e.g. "stealth" (= stank and sbh), "snipers" (= 500 and 1000 sniper), "heavy armor tanks", ...

Tbh I really think TT should have chosen differently...

Most of the players who are using skins mod their entire game and if one skin is standard it will fall out. Thus making the idea of skin mods useless...

And I don't know about you madrackz, but I don't see a point in making Renegade X an absolute carbon copy of C&C Renegade. There'd be no point. The new Renegade X HUD is modern from a gaming standpoint and yet displays more information than Renegade's original HUD, such as the amount of mines and vehicles your team possesses. A different HUD doesn't make our mod suck - if you think so, then don't play it.

Not switching back the the old hud because there is no point. As Fobby already stated, the new hud is a modernized take on the original. And fyi, the layout and general shape of the hud is almost exactly the same. Your bitching about how it no longer looks like a floating button but rather an actual digital heads up display. There isnt even any new information on the hud that you cannot access anyways in ren. So again, quit bitching.

I would just like to state this right now. You will NOT be able to skin Renegade X.

It's kinda painful to watch your hud being replicated by an idiot.

PLECKOS! FTW!

Every so often, I get this positive feeling that humanity can somehow, possibly attain pure awesomeness, and enlightenment, and that there is light at the end of the road for us all. However, I only need to go to the latest HUD thread at RenForums to remind me of how dumb I was for thinking such stupid things.

Congrats, I deem that signature-worthy.
