I am creating a website that will be like Game-maps.net accept offer more in return.

It's called <http://www.gamerz-utopia.com> It will feature Maps, Mods, Updates, News, Game Soundtracks for the enjoyment of the fans.

Do you want to show off all your work to the world?

We can help you!

We will soon be implementing a file upload section to our site, where you can lets others from around the world download your maps, mods and more!

The great thing is, this isn't just for Renegade, but we are going to evolve into more than just a Renegade site, we are going to expand into games from the past such as Duke Nukem 3d, to the newer games of today's era.

We're gonna create Video Tutorials on how to mod Renegade, and much more!

By your support, we can make a family grow.

Thank you all, I hope you enjoy this website.

P.S. - I will be uploading Renegade stuff for the rest of the night most likely. So be sure to keep checking back for more Renegade needs!

I don't want to be rude towards all the effort you will put into this website, but wouldn't it be much better to join forces with game-maps and renhelp, who already jointly offer all this and are well known in the community?

To be honest I never knew they we're doing such a thing.

I haven't really been around too much lately. My PC is still broke, that's the only reason why I left before.

I'm on my bros really bad PC.

Just thought I'd throw a bunch of stuff together and make an all around gaming site for a lot of games.

Luv2pb : What do you mean?

The guy you want to speak to is =AC=C4Smoke. He's the master of Renegade, by far the best player and well respected in the community. If you can get his clan =AC= site to link to your site, you'd have a successful site for sure.

Oh, of course. Sorry about that N1. Here's the link. AC stands for Anti-Cheat, and they're one of the only legitimate clans still in Renegade. Most other clans use cheats to win, but not AC!

And don't listen to Dark. He's trying to fool you. Get your site linked by =AC= and your site will be bigger than the public forums.

It's not gonna be an over night thing, right now it's not really covering anything. It's going to take quite a long time. A lot of dedicated hours and hard work. Quite possibly over a year to really get off it's feet pretty good.

So I mean it's natural to think it's getting nowhere when I just started the site yesterday.

And I'm not gonna be immature and argue with your spelling errors that you don't intentionally do, likewise I do mine intentionally just because I want my site to be different and more to the overall gaming languages people use. I want my site to be a place for every gamer to come to. Yes I realize that using the letter 'S' at the ending of a pluralized word makes more sense, but again; my site is different.

It's a shame how most of you just tarnish good ideas and ridicule they who try to bring a community closer.

Who cares if it's not as good as the rest. I'm at least attempting.

Yes the website is crap right as of now. But once we have the website updated tremendously for a lot of games it will be a better site for you and other gamers.

Okay, trolling over. Srs mode now.

If you want your site to be a success, warhead, try making a website that offers a service that isn't already taken by an established site. You don't have much of a chance replacing gamemaps.net with a gamemaps.net clone. You'd be better off filling a niche that isn't already taken.

Just like society is based on the same Concept you moron.

That's what you call evolution, learn the concept.

What's the difference between Dell and Gateway? Nothing but a brand name. Every PC has different Specs, but they are still the same thing that offers a Windows based platform.

Wait a minute THEY ARE STEALING IDEAS! (Think about that.)

And I said to try and make my site (BETTER) than theirs, not the same exact stuff. Do your research more.

And last time I checked there are forums on Planetcnc.com; if that's the case, what's the point of these forums if a more superior site has forums already?

I know why, because it's a good idea, stolen according to you. But yet, it's a good idea. Nothing unique about it, just a good community and good members.

I'm thinking of adding Such things as (Emulation.) And going to have Music, Video Tutorials you can watch right on the website, games you can play on the website and get ranks, going to implement Live Server List on the site, gonna try to cover 250+ games for downloads and more, not just a meager 10 or whatever Game-Maps.net covers. Might make a part for cheat codes, don't know yet. If I do that will be at a later time.

Going to host any File people want up that has to do with gaming.

(pics, mods, music, files, TC mods, videos, documents, and much more.)

And as you can tell, I'm simply taking an idea and evolving it into a bigger type community, that covers a more sufficient crowd.

Well you should have said it in a less insulting way then, you said it in such a way that was kinda rude, with the 'S' thing.

Funny. I have an anecdote about this. I used to play soccer when I was younger, and it used to be before the age of, oh...seven, they would give you a trophy at the end of the season, no matter how shitty you did (I have some trophies from that time from when my team places last in our league). Yet, after a certain time the everyone-gets-a-trophy was replaced by medals, which only winners got. I have more trophies than I do medals, but the medals always meant more.

The point being, "At least I'm attempting" is fine for seven year olds, but after that it stops mattering as much.

I understand your concept your making.

But I mean, you can't really expect a small site like my to compete with any big site until it's known really well.

That's what I was trying to say .

So my saying as "At least I'm attempting" was just me saying, I'm going to try an get to the top one day, going to try hard. But is it really something I can expect to happen any time soon? No I don't think so. Might take years and years, but I know some day it will happen if keep attempting and don't give up.

But I understand your concept Dover.
Makes good sense.

you're right: you don't improve over night but you become a tiny bit better every day as long as you work on it. Some things that might help you....

make sure your html works and rather stay with basic functions than trying something fancy thats bugged. Make sure it works on both popular browsers (latest ff and ie7/8). BTW you should have both installed. FF is quite handy for webdesign.

And, if you ask me, hands of flash. There's nothing more annoying than flash sites

About graphics:

- Use a decent tool. Paint.net and gimp are excellent freeware.
  - Don't use gif unless really needed. use png if you need transparency or jpg for decent quality with low image size
  - browse this site for website colour palettes: <http://www.colourlovers.com/palettes> or use adobe kuler to create a nice palette <http://kuler.adobe.com/#themes/rating?time=30>

If you make this part good and useable and robust, I (and a few other people, I'm sure) would be willing to submit to the terrible looking banners and color schemes do get a few juicy ROMs (Although I've noted you don't have anything for the NDS. Too bad).

But only once. After that, I might not come back until I needed more ROMs. Better than nothing though, right?

I like the style more now. I'd advise you to change the homepage layout a bit. Noone cares about the playlist: put that somewhere at the bottom. Keep the news at top but maybe make 3 columns: a small one for logging in, a bigger one for the news and a third one for the popular downloads.

Thank you Goztow.

I'll try to play around with it a bit for the rest of the night (5:09 A.M. here)

But I'll try to spruce up the overallness of the website.

Thank you for your Input and how nicely you put it! .

You took out the roms. Your site is useless now.

If you don't have anything positive to say, then why mention it?

I would say a negative constructive comment IS positive.

I wouldn't use a website that looks very cluttered with useless information with a bad colour theme and a humongous ugly banner. You also have loaded it with useless scripts, such as the "download counter" which only frustrates me more when I can't find a direct link and have to go through more than enough links to find something. The HTACCESS logs provide a good enough download log. Negative comment? Yes it is, I'm entitled to it.
