Childish n00bstories behavoir

Thought people are able to act like adults, but n00bstories failed (again).
As I heard.

Its not a nice way (friendly said) to order female n00bstories players NOT to join the long time planned girls vs. boys game even if they wish.

WTF!

The idea of this game was born months and years ago.
People put so much effort into this game and the organisation.
Should'nt be ruined because of such silly behavior.

Community is already ruined enough.

Grow up!

People from both Exodus and n00bstories collaborated on a 'boys vs. girls' game, which included players from other communities as well. The charge is that someone with power in n00bstories had prevented the NS participants from playing the match today, because of its links to Exodus. The extent of this 'prevention' or the consequences of playing in the match haven't been fleshed out yet, though.

That's the problem, nobody has provided proof if it was just along the lines of 'we'd prefer you don't do that' or was a full-on prevention with consequences.

So unless something definitive comes up, I'd take all this with a grain of salt.

You have the right to play in any match you see fit, regardless of the "team" or "clan" you are apart of opposes you doing so.

If you really want to, but your clan wont let you, then that means that clan isn't right for you and you should leave. You can't argue with their rules and policies, you either obey them or leave. They set up the clan and they give you the privilege of playing with them. So you can't dispute their policies because you don't like them. That's why if you come across something radical that you don't like, you should leave them and never look back.

I agree. Having something you plan turn out to be a failure and making up a reason to blame someone else IS childish. I have gone over my private forums at NS and I can't even find a mention of us talking about the little event, much less forbidding the girls on our staff from playing in it. Craziness. Unfortunately, the person on our staff that was supposedly forbidden to play hasn't been online since earlier this afternoon so we can't talk to her yet to find out if she has any clue where this story came from.

Didn't see much reason for that topic to be deleted after the edit it was seemingly normal for the spam forum... but oh well don't much care.

The motive of the filter? Its quite clearly to keep the new community down just because crimson has control of these forums.

The point other people are trying to make is that this is the official forums and should be run in a certain way.

She keeps going on about how we just sped up renegades demise by our actions. Isn't that exactly what she is doing by supressing another community because she doesn't like us.

No, in fact keeping new communities down would keep player counts in existing communities higher, which would slow down Renegade's demise, but that's neither here nor there.

That'd be a very poor motive. If that were the case, all those little communities in the Clan Section of this forum that start up their small servers would be prevented from doing so.

It is not like it was some complex mystery puzzle, we don't necessarily need to take a moment to consider the alternatives that we can pull out of thin air, or our asses, definitely not the thin air that comes from our asses, or mouths for that matter.

We don't need a filter for that. I've been demeaning UNRules at every opportunity without a filter, and I've been doing just fine.

If this supposed filter amounts to nothing more than "Crimson doesn't like us", then Exodus needs to quit bitching and suck it up. Fucking crybabies. Go put a wordfilter on your forums that filters "n00bstories" to "failstories" or something.

Firstly, there is a difference between having the filter on in the official Renegade forums and having it on the n00bstories forum. And secondly, in regards to putting a n00bstories filter on our forum, no, that would be stooping to the level of a six year old.

I guess you're not understanding Dover, this is the RENEGADE community forum not CRIMSON's community forum. It's highly unjust for one community to be singled out publically in THIS forum just because Crimson has the ability to do so.

Maybe we should add a word filter for 'Dover' to change to 'NSsuckup?'

She has the authority to do much more within the confines of this website, but that's neither here nor there. She could turn the forums into a gay buttseks porn site, and neither you or I or anybody else can stop her.

Dover is right, I could change the home page to Goatse and there's nothing anyone can do or say about it. I could turn these forums off right now if I wanted to. Believe me, EA tried to tell me to unban someone once. I told them to shove it and stuck to my guns and nothing bad ever happened to me because of it. It doesn't matter who. This person was warned repeatedly to stop doing something and refused, so I banned him for 30 days. He whined to EA about it and EA asked me to unban him. I explained why the ban was placed and politely refused. After the ban time was up, gradually this person and I got past our differences and get along fine. So, I see no reason to drag his name through the mud. The point was simply that grant89uk actually thinks that EA has ANY say whatsoever in how I choose to run these forums when it could not be farther from the truth.

I don't think there's anything truthful you could say about that incident that COULD "drag my name through the mud". You certainly said a great many untruthful things at the time, and apparently got other people to do so too, including your own brother (!? who the fuck manipulates a family member just to get them to flame someone on the internet for them?)

Quote: This person was warned repeatedly to stop doing something and refused, so I banned him for 30 days.
Untrue.

Quote: He whined to EA about it and EA asked me to unban him.
Hmmm. I read quite a lot that I supposedly 'begged EA to get me unbanned', from all sorts of renesources. Again, totally untrue. I didn't ask to be unbanned; at the time the forums were run so badly that I had no great desire to come back. What I did do was express some concerns I still believe were totally valid. I will be candid here; back then, your actions were appalling. By your own statements, you were pissed at me for telling EA things about you they "shouldn't have ever known about". That alone ought to ring alarm bells

This exodus business, by comparison, seems pretty trivial.

I still have the emails between EA and I so I can tell you that what you're saying isn't exactly truthful. He asked for an explanation of why I banned you. I explained that because he instructed both of us to get along or stop talking to each other and you continued to attack me (and I gave him quotes), I had no choice left but to ban you for a while. He did not have a problem with this.

If you'll remember at the time, I had just met the guy in person because this all happened around the same time EA flew me to Los Angeles for the first C&C3 Community Summit.

The quote from him was "I'm being brought in to the middle of some more drama and I'm really not happy about it." I think that sums it up pretty well.

He did not have a problem with this. He didn't 'instruct' me to do anything, as I've said several times. It is true that I told him that I would TRY to overlook some of the more incredibly bizarre and corrupt things you were doing, but you've no idea how difficult that turned out to be. Let me give you one example. Remember when I said: "crimson, after all's said and done, I sincerely hope you prove me wrong" (or something to that effect), you said don't worry, I will. A mere matter of days later the truth about SK - and you - comes out.

Aside from all that, if he had 'instructed' me what he apparently instructed you, I'd have told him thanks but no thanks. I would have been extremely offended if he thought that we were on the same moral level; it'd be like saying: "Germany, Poland, BOTH OF YOU cut it out!"

When you've said your very worst about me, it isn't going to be anywhere near as bad as some of the stuff I've said about you. Time and time again you've painted me as some kind of supervillain simply for calling you out on really, really fucked up things you did. You clearly didn't see how unbelievably pathetic that was at the time, but you seem a little wiser now, so open your eyes. OMG you showed apoc a quote, what of? Me complaining about my website getting hacked? Me standing up to the bully? This is slavik453 logic.

You can dislike me as much as you care to, but I've never given you a reason to distrust me. And yet you banned me, while the likes of 0x90 and slavik/null and xptek and kholdstare get away with a great deal. When slavik came back recently (and completely humiliated himself again), he almost gave me the impression that he was quite close in your counsels recently. I could almost believe that you considered the likes of him a better ally than me; is that true? Don't answer that out loud if you don't want to, but if internally you're thinking 'yes', then god help us.

Crimson wrote on Wed, 19 August 2009 08:00 If you'll remember at the time, I had just met the guy in person because this all happened around the same time EA flew me to Los Angeles for the first C&C3 Community Summit.

Indeed they can't. However, I've asked you several times over the years whether you consider yourself answerable to the community, not to EA. You generally give me the impression that you don't. I don't accept that this is the same situation as you running n00bstories; this is the official Renegade forums and if you don't have a legal obligation to run it more fairly than you have done with, for example, me... or exodus... then you ought to have a moral obligation. Like I said in the thread which has since been deleted; you put whatever filters you like on the n00bstories forum and you won't hear much complaint from me. Doing it here, however, is unjust.

The whole "I pay the bills" bit has seemed to be one of the biggest flaws in how this community and n00bstories are run.

I am suprised it took so long for such a division to happen. People have just seemed like they were almost affraid to contest the way things are run, because they didn't want to exiled or whatever...

I really wonder, and must ask.

Crimson, do you continue to run this community and n00bstories for the love of Renegade itself, or for the love of being the boss?

Who did what?

Remember we just resigned as staff there. We didn't initially have any intention of starting a new community.

However luv2pb said and I quote.

"Dont dare rage at us then expect to still play here".

Sounds straightforward to me.

So whos fault is it really then crimson eh?

Yes, but the basis of your community wasn't "I'm so much better than <insert other community here>". I recognized what you were doing and even allowed you to use the nickname the Jelly had loaned me to help get it started, remember?

Crimson, thanks for all the time + effort you have put into this game! You don't get enough recognition for helping to keep this game going. I do personally prefer the Exodus server because of its closer to normal settings in terms of starting credits and time per game, but overall it hurts renegade by splitting a once single player base into 2 entities..

It's a start, now how about having real dialogue between both communities (and just just focusing on getting individuals to switch)? Plus isn't a02 under your control?

Jellybe4n wrote on Mon, 17 August 2009 11:52OK, I don't have the time to follow everything going on anymore hence I haven't read these forums in like 6 months.

That hostname was on loan, with the knowledge it could be called back anytime. The hostname Crimson uses on here main server is different.

Anyway, as far as i could see that hostname wasn't used in ages, I was going to set it up as a clanwar server.

There's a bust-up in the ranks at NS, I get asked if exodus can use the name, I said yeah no problem as it wasn't being used, and if it was it seemed to be a reaction to the split to use the name out of spite.

So to make it clear, yes I said they can use the name. Your politics between the communities are your business, i couldn't give a flying fuck what happened or what will happen.

As for me, this is the first time i logged in in ages, and it will be the last. I didn't come here to debate or argue, as i really don't care that much. I came to remove any doubt.

Peace.

We tried. In fact we had many of them convinced that they overreacted and probably didn't need to do what they did but they didn't want to just throw away all the time they invested in setting up their forums and server.

Dover wrote on Tue, 18 August 2009 21:29If this supposed filter amounts to nothing more than "Crimson doesn't like us", then Exodus needs to quit bitching and suck it up. Fucking crybabies. Go put a wordfilter on your forums that filters "n00bstories" to "failstories" or something. You've got the right attitude, but the wrong perspective.

No one really cares about the exodus community being offended. It's more along the lines that people who have no idea about what the hell was going on were unable to use the word exodus or even link to websites that used the word "exodus" in the URL.

..at least that's how it is with me. I really can't speak for others, but I've noticed no love to the exodus dudes from the rest of the community. They've been all like "Lolinternet!"

Ok... putting aside all the "death of Ren" talk for a minute...

Can you give any good defense as to why there was ever a such word filter in place at these forums which give off a neutral idea?

And no denying that there ever was is not a good defense, as you might aswell call everyone else who had seen it an idiot/liar/whatever...

Owning a business and employing 9 people may be good enough for some people who like power... but then again there are the others who try to take over the world. So why would it be so hard to believe that you enjoy playing the "I pay the bills" card way too much.

As most of us know by now online is not the same as IRL... So you prolly couldn't treat 9 employees like dog poo IRL w/o them quitting... Taking some of your thunder with them.

BUT, here in the magic kingdom of the interwebs, if you run a website/server, and people need to use that service... it is much easier to be a tyrant.

Nobody likes a tyrant IRL, or on the internet.

I was not part of the "exodus" of n00bstories. I left before then, because I was tired of how it was being ran. The people at the top never seemed to be around, and when they were... it was not very pleasant or productive.

A lot of things that happened behind the curtains there were never handled properly/completely... but the normal players/customers didn't know it all.

IRL the customers know a lot more about the places they patronize. If those places do things the general public does not agree with they lose business. You would lose a lot more customers if your players/customers saw more of what is said in private.

Anybody that would stay is either as bad, or just kissing butt hoping to climb the ladder quickly after the others jump down.

Ok, back to the "death of Ren" talk...

If you continue to run both of these communities that you pay the bills for, I personally believe you would be contributing to the demise of Ren more than a new server/community being started.

I'm not going to drag their names through the mud, but most of them are the ones who haven't been posting here from your admin staff. Some of the moderators had wanted to be admins and they saw an opportunity to get more power and took it.

I don't see any truth to that at all lol.

The only moderators you have left stayed because they thought it would give them a better chance of getting admin at n00bstories.

Try to not to describe a situation and use it against our community when clearly your thinking of your own.

Anyway, as I said the first time: yes, that did infact happen with one person that we know of. Did he receive admin? Nope. The same thing happened with AT LEAST one of your moderators. Did he receive admin? No.

I don't know why you'd use that as a defense, but whatever. We only have three admins that weren't already admins at n00bstories, and one wasn't a mod at the time of the split and the two others didn't even request it... so, good call!
