Jelly Mini or Exodus are good choices.

Good luck with that. Not many servers are "overcrowded" these days and whiners are everywhere. Just ignore them and play on a server with the player count and settings you like.

Pretty much all you'd see if you ask this open-ended question is people advertising theirs without knowing what it is you're actually looking for. Is there somewhere you used to play that you liked that isn't around anymore?

er, sorry, forgot the over crowded part. jelly marathon has been up to 58 players on a normal basis, try jelly-mini like raven said, or mappack

Jelly-Mini ftw, though I will admit it gets its share of morons and whiners from time to time.

Jelly aow if you want old skool settings.
Exodus if you want a more challenging game but be ready for lag.
Tsu gaming zombie server if you want something that is completely nuts.
Atomix if you want new mods plus sh!t loads of cash.
Noobstories if you want a server that is nearly always 20v20.
Jelly-mini if you want something challeging.
Ekt if you wanna see a lot of bitching.
Unrules if you want new maps(don't bother they suck).
Storm if you want power hungry mods.

Yes, I used to play RxD (yep, that ilegal server thing) and i really liked it there was a max 11 v 11 players so it didn't lag because of people.

I also play storm coop sometimes, and i played on exodus once with Reaver.
I'll hop by some of them then.

Sniping servers are always fun too.
I tend not to lag in exodus server though?

Me neither lol, but I do live fairly close to Dallas... that atlantic hop may throw it off.

When I play, I basically either go to Jelly AOW1, Exodus, or St0rm Co-Op. The St0rm mix server is pretty good too, but as Nune said I haven't heard the most wonderful things about their moderators...
