I typed (using the Google Translator) it in German because she is a foreign exchange student from Germany and I thought it might be more romantic that way:

"Hallo Katherina, schrieb ich dieses Schreiben in Deutsch, nur für Sie. Würde es Ihnen etwas ausmachen, wenn ich ging mit Ihnen Ihre nächste Klasse? Wir könnten sogar zu Fuß draußen auf den Bürgersteigen rund um die Schule und nehmen Sie an der frischen Luft und zu sehen, wenn Sie wollen."

Here is an English version of it:

"Hi Katherina, I wrote this letter in German, just for you. Would you mind if I walked with you to your next class? We could even walk outside on the sidewalks around the school and take in the fresh air and view if you want."

Kind of creepy and too elaborate to write her a note. Why don't you just walk up to her and ask her in German if she'd like to walk to class with you?

This is, of course, assuming I'm not speaking with a romantically challenged T-1000 Terminator bent on the destruction of mankind.

In that case we're fucked.

That, and: translation utilities have limited effectiveness. They're designed so you can get the gist of a text you're reading; not to translate things accurately for speech. That's the kind of thing professional (human) translators do.

I'd have to agree with that. ^

Of course I am not familiar with the German culture, and they might prefer something like that. Use your best judgement.

So yeah is there any LEGITIMATE reason why you're posting this on every C&C forum you can register on? Go away.

Writing a note in High School to some girl is creepy. Just play it smooth and just walk her...lol

Going the extra mile with all this weird stuff will just make her think you are some kind of stalker!
