Well since today 1 october it is not allowed to send spam mails.
This means if you are not signed up, you shouldnt get spam.
Else you can go to the cops.

However, did you knew that recently every company took the chance to send out a lot of bulk mails etc.

Its quite ironic, that the dutch mail traffic raised till 40%.

So dutchys be warned

I know English isn't your primary but I'm really not sure what you are talking about. I would actually like to know more since it sounds like you're saying your government outlawed spam email? Yes? I'm very curious how this would work?

How would they stop spam emails from other countries?

If it's like in Belgium, then every Dutch company needs previous permission from the client before he can send them publicity.

This won't do anything against spam from other countries.
