We're supposed to play versus the winner, but no news. Fobby told me there were multiple problems with timing / organization... we all know them. But is there already a decision on who will go to next round?

This is why I hate organizing things like this
I wish our mods or owners organized this

They are supposed to organize it. The leaders of the community are supposed to talk with the leaders of the community they are playing so they can organize a game in the next 2-3 week period.

It was originally set for last week, but Shadow Team couldn't show up. They then asked us on the NE Clan Forums if last Saturday would be good. We specified that we could not play on that day, so the day went by and we were not able to make it. Apparently they showed up though.

So you guys can judge however you want.

Is there a chance you'll be playing in the next days?

As you all know by now, ST is dead, and NE is a clan in which many players do not play often or at all...I say give 'em 1 more shot, as TD posted. I would like to play for ST, just to fill their line-up up, but my schedule changes rapidly by the hour, so i cannot ever be sure if i can make it.

NE was able to get 8 for our first game, and I saw 3 of them on at once yesterday.

I think this game could easily happen, just takes communication between the two parties.

Remember, the deadline for THIS match (NE vs. Shadow-team) is on Tuesday October 13th. Are you guys already organizing this? I hope so. If the teams do not manage to play before or on deadline itself, both teams will be disqualified from the tournament.

There are still 6 days left until the deadline, that should be enough.

Then who will we play? We'd really like to play a game .

I'm not sure what will happen in that case, we might be able to work this out together, in some way.
