The deadline for submitting a roster was yesterday and I note that only three teams have submitted one. Where are everyone else's rosters? Not looking too good, tbh...

For the record, Exodus, our opponent next round has a signup in their forum, they just havent officially posted their roster yet. I hope this is the case with all the other teams who haven't posted.

the roster deadlines are hard to meet as teams are constantly changing im not sure about every1 else, but cant we just turn up with a team at the time. and if a team doesnt show they forfeit.

having us submit teams that are not right or complete, just because you post a deadline doesnt help gettin people to show up and really doesnt help in any way. is there any reason other than u want to see a team prior to the game?

Im playing for Exodus and lately people dont have the same response rate times as earlier, this is obviously the same with other communities please can we ditch the penalties for submitting a roster and just bring a team at the time, which is organised by the representatives of the communities involved in the match that will get very sloppy very quickly if your team is to gather a team at the last minute then at least throw a roster together of people who you think might be there

The only reason why you need to submit a roster is to make sure one person doesn't end up playing for multiple communities. And that makes a lot of sense, tbh. I remember playing 3 different communities in community wars and we ended up playing against people we've seen before every time.

Mr. Mom also said last round that one can still change a roster until the day before you play. I suppose this still counts?
