Well, if you're willing to reformat, just do that.

I only suggested it because most people don't like to just start fresh.

You can back up using an external HDD or just a flash drive. Infections will probably find its way onto them though. So scan them before putting the data on your newly restored computer.

yes something like that

Now i got another from avantivirus.com and antsypwarego.com
my comps should be recommended for being targeted by criminals

do you have ANY form of intellect?

btw.

to backup your computer, put all the files you want to keep in C:\Backup
