That's not impossible. I've had similar stats in past resets... a hundred or so wins and one or two losses.

Unless those games were played 1 on 1 or in a clan battle I could see that happening.............but in single games with 20+ hell no...............

Well I always play in 20 player games and as I said, I've had stats similar to that. Right now I have 34 wins/6 losses (haven't played all that much lately) and at least 4 of those losses were because of Ran6er... he knows exactly how I play and spoil my plans every time he's on the opposing team.Don't start whining and accuse people of cheating just because you don't know how to do early, devastating rushes. The fact is, that on most public servers 80\% of the participants are moronic newbies and winning against a team of those is not hard if you know what you're doing - even if your own team consists of nitwits.

Hmm it's possible.. but only if you play on passworded games where you have more control over who joins the game.On public servers.. no way at all. You're bound to lose a few to stupid people and you can't do everything.

He even got more than 500 ladder points in one game.   (That match has a total of 170 players in it and the one got deducted the most points is -90)The best point that I ever got in one game is close to 300 points on a 40 players map.Something is definily fishy here.Devon: you are just 2 places above me.

I see so many players constantly going for cheap pts every game every time i play with them. You can make a bet that that same person will be on the top of hourglass shooting at the ref with an artilly, or MRLing the hand from base on islands, or basically finding any nook and shooting non-stop at buildings contributing nothing to winning in every game.These are the players that will watch a hotwire/tech run into the building while shooting uselessly at nothing in ther etank and do nothing about it. Or will never fix you when its needed, or rather shoot at an enemy building as an APC/HUMMER/BUGGY drives right past them. 1 name for somebody who does this is a player with the nick "Iranoob" quote: Did it ever occur to you that the 80\% also applies to you. No it doesn't, since I'm not a moronic newbie. A small lesson in statistics: if you have 20 elements, a grand total of 100\% and 80\% of that is type A, and you know that element number 4 (or whatever) is type B, the chance of element number 4 to be type A is still 0. The possibility for any other element to be type A increases though. quote: Furthermore, the 20\% of non-n00bs also applies to the other team. And what about those times when the oppsing team has three/four times more experienced players than you do? The people aren't always evenly divided by skill level you know? True, but that has only happened once or twice in all the months I've played Renegade except when I play against clannies.I should point out that I only play on my own server which means I never have any lag which gives me and my team a significant edge. However, I don't create servers with ridiculous amounts of people - Renegade sets my maxplayers to 48, and I rarely host servers with more than 24 in order to keep the lag down.

Yeah, it does sounds fishy. All them wins and 1 loss, I don't know.He's playing in more than 24 player games man, he's in at least 32, most likely 40. He's averaging like 125 pts a game, which means he's either got incredible luck, or he's up to something fishy.Sometimes that stupid thing that the high players do helps the team out. The one where they shoot the mrls at the hand the whole game, or use arties or whatever. If you have someone doing that, you have a steady stream of points coming in. I only hate in when there's like 4 MRLS or Arties doing it, it wastes all of your tanks.

When you can't even walk through a door or around a corner because it lags too much then you can be Thresh himself, you'll still get whupped. Even slight lag can make you miss the MCT with C4 which has lost me a few games in the past.

There is no lag when you host he probably has his on server which is so laggy no one good will play anyway so he probably just is beating up on newbies

Sometimes I do shoot at buildings far away from the enemy base. Once on island I got a art and shoot at the war far once then I start to shoot at the refinery. I manage to kill the refinery all by myself as the GDI and other Nod have just brought their tanks. Another time on wall I killed the Hand and the Refinery using the same trick. I do not think the way I did it is cheating.Ghost1988's ranking is still the same but with 100 win /2 lose. It seems like he is playing on a very laggy server which does not affent him and the game lasts a long time then the normal 30 Min.

Bull dawg is right!I played this guy, once.It was a 20+ people game, and the server was not dedicated.Everyone but the (g)host, had massive lag.Now, he didn't KICK people, but I think he somehow inserted a delay, and /or blocked some clients on his firewall, AFTER they had spent some time (2 minutes or so) on his server.Well, if he had host bandwidth problems, at least he should have made a dedicated server. It would not have taken 75 games of winning to find that out.When I was playing him, our team stood no chance with the lag involved, but he was driving around in his flametanks just fine.Just look at the individual games data, and you see a pattern:ghost1988 has a long connect time, and a high score.HUNDREDS of other players in his games, have about one to two and a half minute connect time max.That must be when they either give up, or he makes them drop.There are only a handful of games he plays that indicate he might be a real good player.He's at the very least manipulating his ladder score.Look at his game 78168432.Ghost1988 is connected for 18:40 time.There are 26! other people also on his teams side at some point.BUT, they all averagebetween thirty seconds and two minutes connect time.On the opposing team, the longest connected GDI guy is there for 12 minutes!So, he had a staggering 6 minutes longer than anyone else in the entire game, of rushing the GDI base to gather gamepoints.The same in game 78354074.He's in for 31:05 time, second longest Nod player for 29:00 minutes.Longest GDI player... 24:00. Again, a leading 6 to 7 minutes.All other players have far shorter gametime than that.AND THE TOTAL GAME TIME IS ... 30:28.So, how can he be in the game 37 seconds longer than the game itself lasts?Another thing indicating something: He's playing on Nod side 289 times vs 128 times on GDI.Or the fact that many known good players, leave the same games he stays in, within about thirty seconds.There's also a few stats showing he might just be a good player, such as his averegae time between getting a hit himself (36.8 seconds, very good) but with these messed up other games polluting the stats, this does not say much.

I would think that Westwood employee that looks at the front page of the ladder (i would imagine they do regularly) would notice this, and if they have not done anything by now i'm sure reporting him is gonna do no good. When I played RA2 if took several months of wide spread cheating before Westwood would even admit they you could cheat, then took a few more months before they actually reset somebody. A total of about 8 months of cheats to do something..BTW- C4Kitty, nobody wants you here. You need to just go away
