The map was City (not flying) and I started the game mid way... well it hadn't been going for long and my base was infested with n00bs that where C4ing each other etc (you know what n00bs are like) anyways they managed to organse an APC rush (you they accually talked to each other) 5 of the n00bs that were C4ing everything and everyone jumped in the APC and drove off (I was just thinking what a waste of a good APC) about a min later they had got into the base and managed to destory there PP... anyway I think this show that n00bs CAN be usefull and do something constructive when they need to (they must have had a hard decision when there were in that PP do I destory the PP or be a n00b and waste my C4 on my teammate?

If your power plant and HoN are blown up, the middle area of the map is sniper infested, you are saving for, say flame rush, what better entertainment can you have than c4 your fellow teammates? Ok, I know repair stuff sure, but there isn't always something and after all isn't that the very reason that you'd have an engine in the first place?Btw, don't talk about organizing APC rush. It's more buying an APC and using the "Get in the vehicle!" command.
