Gotta admit, these kind of topics make great nominations for Topic of the year, just as an example.

We'll have our mods watch him and as soon as I see him joining I'll keep an eye on IRC. As soon as someone complains I'll watch him ingame if another mod is not doing that yet. Hell, I might instantly drop the hammer on him when I see lots of complaints because I don't want to waste my time.

Anyways, the policy is not to ban people for cheating in different server. As far as I am aware, this player has not yet cheated in our server. The exception to this is when said player might pose a threat somehow, like Mandai. For the record, we've also let Loki play in the servers. We were watching him a lot and he was clean, until the day he did abuse cheat name removed and the mods instantly banned him. His explanation by then was:

10/14|23:13:40 | +Jakson: this is devastating
10/14|23:13:56 | +Jakson: i wa s gonna stay unabnned but then ig ot high tl;dr: No, we don't ban players for cheating in other servers.

I don't expect anyone to really admit they are cheating, but it seems a bit...strange that you keep posting but aren't denying the accusations/evidence?

I've got only banned from the server which used to cheat in (n00bstories). I can play other servers, people only get banned from servers they cheat in. Seems logic, why ban them from whole community? Even if they will use it again somewhere they'll get caught after period time.

Btw. nice thread bro.

I'm still shocked that exodus is taking in known shameless lying cheaters.

You might be surprised to learn that other Ren communities have done the same. Even worse was when they ignored the cheating because they stood to gain from the cheater's know-how.

Kind of hard to suck the cock of a community I haven't mentioned in any posts in this entire thread.

Hey, it's OK to run a double standard; that's been pretty normal around this joint for a while now. Just don't go calling out others, because there's plenty of dirt to go around.

Is this some kind of subtle reference to that Dead6re guy and his little incident?

No, I don't. It was kept pretty hush hush and I don't deal too much in server politics, especially back when I was actually playing this game.

The important ideas in this thread are:

1. Zeratul got banned from Jelly.

1.25 The fact that he got banned from Jelly inspired him to inquire about other people's server preferences/reccomendations here.

1.5 If I understand correctly, Jelly normally unbans people after a certain amount of time pending what they do to get banned in the first place.

1.75 BUT Zeratul has lowered his chances of being unbanned by telling lies in the beginning.

2. After IRC logs were posted showing BIATCH detecting BH Zeratul has been completely honest, which is still refreshing even though he cheated.

3. Every server has their own policies (written or not) about banning people who were caught cheating on other servers. Some might always ban anyone who ever cheated anywhere, while others might sit back, watch, and wait until the known cheater has done it on their server. Of course the situation varies by the cheater (example = mandai).

3.5 No server should really be questioned on their choice to ban or not unless the person actually cheated on their server. It is up to each community's staff to decide on how much of a threat to their gameplay this person is.

4. If you do not agree with a server's choice in the matter of banning a known cheater, don't play there when the player is in, maybe not at all. Or maybe take it up with the staff of that server respectfully if you think they might have missed some evidence that would likely change their minds.

5. No need to start a flame fest here, it obviously won't do any good.

As far as I know we dealt with Dead6re properly. As soon as we found out that he cheated we let everyone know, and when we found the backdoor he created we removed that piece of software from our webspace.

That's what I thought too. The whole thing seemed rather public and transparent, which is the reason I know about it at all in the first place.

Unless someone knows better than I do...?

I fail to see why this thread is as great as some of you said it is. Maybe it's because I didn't read the rest after my posts until now.

Moral of this thread: People need to realize Renegade Forums is no place to talk about getting banned.
