I just downloaded redalert 2 yuri's revenge and i want to play my friends from their houses. obviously the Westwood servers have been down for a while and you can only play your friends through the network mode when we are near each other. I was wondering if there is a way to make some type of server that we could all connect to from different places and then play each other through the network mode?

I very much doubt you're going to find any assistance here, seeing as how your copy of the game is illegal. Incidentally, that's probably also why you can't connect to the servers, which are no longer run by Westwood (obviously) but are, in fact, still running.

This.

The servers are now run by XWIS, so you can still connect. Except you don't have a legal copy.

And as far as I know, Hamachi is a bitch to set up. Just get TFD, it's super cheap by now.

That should have been the first thing that came to mind when you realized you can't play online.

On the other hand, it IS Red Alert 2, and I wouldn't be caught dead paying real-life money for that crap either.

If this is your intent with this account, stop. It's not funny.

Actually... I don't know what my "intent" with this account is... nor do I care if you think it is funny tbh.

I have just been watching a lot of Smallville lately, and it is stuck in my head.

Oh, yeah, me too.

...

What? My receipt?

I...uh...lost it.

In a volcano.

This forum doesn't support Warez. RA2 doesn't run on LAN easily anyway, as it uses an outdated protocol called IPX.

Topic locked.
