

---

Subject: Wireless Internet

Posted by zeratul on Wed, 20 Jan 2010 03:45:12 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

So after some discussion with my grandparents about why NOT to get Wireless Internet they decide to get it anyway... now the internet keeps having moments where it will not load a page and they are happening just about every 20 minutes or every time i visit a new site... is this normal?

---

---

Subject: Re: Wireless Internet

Posted by danpaul88 on Wed, 20 Jan 2010 08:29:44 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

Depends on what type of wireless internet... are you talking about a 3G modem connection or a wired broadband connection with a WiFi router attached to the broadband line?

If it's WiFi then no, that's certainly not normal, I have been using WiFi at my house for 8 years and have never had connection problems.

---

---

Subject: Re: Wireless Internet

Posted by CarrierII on Wed, 20 Jan 2010 08:35:35 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

That actually sounds like what happens when you go with TalkTalk and the solution is to run:

```
ipconfig /flushdns
```

or to restart your router/modem.

(Or when they phone up asking about your service, go on a three minute rant. Then they hang up and two days later customer support phone asking if anything's wrong...)

---

---

Subject: Re: Wireless Internet

Posted by zeratul on Wed, 20 Jan 2010 23:38:54 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

danpaul88 wrote on Wed, 20 January 2010 02:29a wired broadband connection with a WiFi router attached to the broadband line?
its fine now we hooked it up wrong

---