After clicking Logout, press Ctrl + R.

Alternatively, if you're desperate for some reason, clear your browser's cookies.

Interestingly, if you use the 'default' theme instead of the 'Renegade_Forums' theme the Logout button does not actually work. Nor do the buttons to change the current page in your Private Messaging folders.

If you want to logout either clear your cookies or change your theme back to the 'Renegade_Forums' one. Personally I prefer the 'default' theme (the blue one) as it's easier to read and I can actually see which topics have new posts, but I do like to have a working logout button and be able to get to my older private messages.... sigh the folder icon to the left of a topic is red on RenForums theme if there are unread messages, and blue if there are no new messages.

I am talking about the forum homepage, showing which forum sections have new posts. On the Renegade_Forums theme (black and murky green) it has those light bulb icons which I find very hard to tell the difference between forum sections with new posts and those without.

Really? I can read them easily, perhaps it isn't as clear-cut as red/blue but I have no problem telling which is new/notnew from the lightbulb icons.

Lit lightbulb against non-lit, but to each their own I guess.

I think its the fact the non-lit bulbs still have a glow surrounding them, which doesn't make sense because its NOT lit... I just find the ultra-pale yellow lit and white non-lit bulbs too similar to each other.
