Sniping pwns if you know how to do it right. 99 points for killing an enemy 1000 can really add up to help a team....assuming you are doing it right. Not to mention killing other infantry as well, as well as soft armored vechs along the way. Oh, and umad?

if you use it right a 500 sniper is very helpful to the team this guy seems angry or upset about the people who don't contribute to what's going on in the field and just snipe in the tunnels or do dumb piddley shit all game what those players do not understand is that In The Field Are All Getting mvp with or without pointsfix with a sniper the entire game is fairly easy to do on maps like field, big games on islands, and obviously easy as hell to do in inf only wars. Killing techs/hotties repairing enemy vechs is a big help in controlling the field as well....not saying i would rather have a jet than a med, but i am saying that snipers are FAR more useful than you guys give them credit for...

150 points can be damn useful, especially when you're behind in points :\

plus, getting rid of the snipers means they won't fuck up your hotwires/technicians. which means, your tanks won't die.

which means, you won't instantly lose.

I dunno man, I'd say that's helpful

Wasn't 150 tbh, not that it matters though. 99 points is killing a full life sakura, which i was not. I don't think the black hand was at full life either...but it's not like it really matters or mattered anyway, we were up by too much at that point any how.

First off:

HaTe wrote on Wed, 31 March 2010 18:5399 points is killing a full life sakura

Second off:

When behind points it matters when only ahead by maybe 100 or so points it also matters When ahead by thousands it no longer matters

there are usually more useful things a player can do than stick around in the tunnels all game some people don't play to win or really try to win at all; they're there to get as many kills or as many points as they can, and their team losing or winning makes no difference to them because it's not even on their mind

it's just renegade, and it's been dying since 2003

Lol. I go into tunnels because i know that i am almost always going to be one of the best snipers on the team (not being cocky, i just have a thing for sniping in renegade). If my team needs more vechs in field though, then that is what i will do. I'm not there to get most kills, but i am there to have fun, and hopefully win. If my team is controlling field well, and the other team is taking tunnels, then ofc i'm going to go snipe, as tunnel control can really make a break a team very easily.
