CloudyServ might change the colour of the chat in your IRC client to green to make it different to common text colours out there.

If you want to change it, find the ppage line and change the colour.

If you want to test it, go ingame and ppage yourself, it should always appear blue ingame.

I don't believe their is one in cloudy. It page's green without cloudy serv bot even loaded though, so I'm not sure what relevance it has with this.
I'm talking about paging player's in-game(I want it in blue).

When in a server, try typing the players name after a /

Example:

/Zion_Fox Message goes here

Will appear on your end and their end in blue text saying who it came from, but to my knowledge it only appears like that in game.

The same command is ppage in the FDS to my knowledge.

Like Omar said, see if you have a HUD.ini in your data folder, try renaming it or removing it and see if it goes back to blue.

Also, are you using RR? I think that changes it to green.

I think only players with scripts see them in green, others see it in blue. It has smth to do with the paging command, indeed. Ask danpaul.
