I try to not get involved in any political stuff or cause but today, I have difficulties to ignore what is happening in the gulf.

It could be spread around the world just because of the gulfstream, so I request to everyone to share this on all your website, the cnc community and everywhere to let people know what is happening!

It is our planet and this could infect the third of the water that we have. People are getting sick already. Please if you are there, ACT!

Do not forget to Boycott BP :

<http://www.facebook.com/album.php?aid=15995&id=119101198107726#!/BoycottBP>

And please be aware to this could become the worst ecologic catastrophe of all time. (if you forget an explosion of the caldera of Yellow Stone...)

There you can see how it could be in 2 months with the Gulf Stream. Simulation based on current situation and so a possible evolution.

I will not help the US people. You know why?

Because here in Europe we will feel the consequences of the bad USA regulations as well, and even if we're getting money from the USA/BP, we're still not able to solve the damage.

How would you all feel about this one?

Imagine if BP killed tens of thousands of people and injured and/or poisoned over half a million more? What if BP just left the country and point blank refused to pay any compensation for the clean up, then refused to make any payments to victims or their families, then had the British Government refuse to extradite the CEOs to face a court of law.

After 25 years, BP would make some compensatory payments but it wouldnt even be enough to cover the medical bills.

Now imagine that these British CEOs actually knew all about the potential for this accident to happen and fixed their British plant but did nothing for the plant in America becasue it would cost too much.

Even now after 25 years, the area has still not been cleaned up. More than half a million American people are still being exposed to toxic gasses and chemicals, many people remain seriously ill and new born babies are having horrible deformities.

Still, the British Government refuse to apologise, make reparations or extradite those responsible.

Oh....wait.

Replace "BP" with "Union Carbide (now Dow Chemical)" and "British" with "American", "American" with "Indian" and "America" with "Bhopal".

I will not be helping the USA until they help the people of Bhopal.

If you see any pictures of the Bhopal people protesting, they give Americans some very tempting offers like "Give them Warren Anderson and we will give you Osama"!

Back to this oil spill, BP is a British(=FOREIGN!) registered company so they are easy targets for the American media. The company itself is a global corporation and has more Americans working for it than any other nationality. Transocean and Haliburton are American companies barely mentioned in this debacle. You know how much those companies got back in insurance on the gulf accident. You know how much they want to pay to the American people to help clean it up. Go ask that question.

Its nowhere near the worst ecological disaster "of all time". It might become the worst oil spill but even then it has a long way to go.

Do the opposite, and instead buy shares in BP. They're becoming a real bargain.

^there is a huge difference between the people of Bhopal (who had nothing anyway) and the people of a developed nation that I can relate to.

The developed nation had the means and the rules to prevent this. The people that had nothing now have something: terrible diseases and even less chance on a fair future.

Indeed. i have seen people make thousands of $$$ in just a few days with only "relatively" small fluctuations in the share price. Of course, this could go either way depending on when you buy but they are unlikely to remain low forever since BP has no real debts to speak of and has been making billions of $$$ in profit for years. That isnt going to change anytime soon.

Sure the final bill for the gulf spill will hit them hard, but that will be paid back over the course of a few years. I think a lot of well known oil companies would have folded if this accident happened to them.

Sorry i dont understand your post. Are you saying it doesnt matter because they were a undeveloped nation? Surely you can relate to other human beings? India isnt "that" far back.

Good point and I can, but I was just answering your question as to why it wasn't getting as much attention as the topic subject (oil spill).

The thing that pisses me off is no one cared about regulating this stuff before this happened.

That's something I hate so much about America- we give no thought on something beforehand, then when it bites us in the ass we cry endlessly. Then after a short amount of time we don't even give it a second thought again.

Still, this shit sucks, and there needs to be real cleanup operations...
