I used to have a unique setup with the arrow keys, but then I got a new keyboard that didn't let me keep the setup. I then reverted to WSAD, but I still have some modifications (such as I use the button 'Q' to change to my previous weapon and 'C' to change to my next. Shift is my crouch and my middle mouse button is used to walk.)

I feel like I used to play better with my original arrow key set up, but its not like it really matters anymore.

In my old age, I need vivid bright skins on all characters otherwise I just can't see them.

The tie dye skin looks cool. I can see why you'd call them advantage skins, but cheating - ha. If people really give a shit, I won't use them. /ot

What the fuck.

Have you considered using a less-retarded setup? Maybe that way you won't have to resort to cheating like a faggot.

I got forcerg'd because of my name and I had a whopping 10.0 KD! So imagine how fun that was. Then as I posted about something hypocritical a moderator said about the whole thing my post got deleted. Anyways the fact that you can be force renguarded by some random nobody for any reason at all still astonishes me. Take that ability away from people who abuse it.

On another note there's no reason to not use the default keys with the default reticle. Also I suggest playing around ALOT with the sensitivity because I believe that plays a large role for obvious reasons.

Oh and to someone who says RG is useful Azazel was a moderator for NS and he always ran renguard

It was a mod who forcerg'd me, which also is a kick. That's after several players had done it themselves though

The reason why it is like that is i got used to it after my last mouse issue when i had to change the controls

This vid can explain why Ramrod is pretty easy to kill, lol. Pretty cool though, never seen anyone play like that. But I haven't noticed him being anything more than an average player, if that.

Could be because you start to cheat again.
