I think it's ok, not too bad. I do not like the parts where it seems to "skip", like a record with a scratch. It is better than the last one in my opinion.
I still prefer that very first one you posted.

I am no expert though, and could not do any better at all.

For starters, if your goal is to make music, I suggest you learn an instrument and study music theory, rather than knocking shit together on a program you torrented and hoping for the best.

From there, I suggest trying to make your music with less shittiness.

Sad part is that Dover probably has no skills in real life outside of performing 250 APM in starcraft 2.

There needs to be some sort of transition at 0:35.. it just suddenly turns into something completely different

There's not enough of a change between the beginning and after the second drop

Other than that, not bad imo. I like the beat and where it could go

I'd rather renalpha handled Dover's trolling (frankly that's what it is, you could just not say a thing, Dover) like that, then force me to moderate.

Careful what you wish for. his OP was quite frankly better than the other stuff he's made.

He has the timing down. It's got faster bpm's and he's beefed up his sound. Still lacks bass and a better drum beat. Needs more catchy hooks.

Practice a bit more. And use a better sound pack for your beats and synths and piano notes and shit. FL Studios is completely bollocks though especially when your using the presets, I suggest using something better but first, learn how to crawl (musically).

That's one hell of a curve you're grading on.

You've got your sexes muddled up, I curve slightly to the left.
