TBH its anything but fresh. I'm not telling you how annoying the sounds are because i don't want to argue about taste. But you don't hit the beat with your samples and loops most of the time and you are going off beat by accident...

I think dover wasnt trolling when telling you to study some music first before you try to make tracks... hes simply right.

it'd be a start if you tried to spend more than 5 minutes on a track..

What the fuck.

I do believe you should quit trying to make any sort of music.

Standard FL sounds and a standard FL kick, did you even layer the kick?? There's not a single thing good about this track... First learn how to make tracks before you start shitting tracks out by the minute...

How come you can't keep all of your songs in a single thread? That way it's easier for everyone to track your progress in making music.

If you keep doing it, you will eventually get better, but there's no need to make 30 threads technically about the same thing.

You may have a point if there was any progress to track. Though, even animals know it's better to just shit in one place than everywhere you tread.

I appreciate the critics, really i do.

But for some reason i somewhat get irritated by some of you saying i suck etc.

You shouldn't blame on me, for your lack of selfredeem.

Seriously, i cant tell you guys more then that i want to show off what i made which im practicing.
The program is really hard.

The drums do sound nice, however the synths is something different.

you heard him dover, its your lack of selfredeem that makes you hate his obviously good work. How couldnt it be, given that he had the program for at least 3 days on his harddrive and that he spent 5 minutes with it to create this haunting sonic soundscape!
