MOVE! Always MOVE! I can tell the people who have played before from people who are just starting out by the way they move..... If your in a game with a decent sniper and your just standing there shooting into a fray, your going to die, guranteed! It doesn't matter if your standing still repairing a vehicle, building, or a teammate, if you stand still your going to die..... I found that a HUGE amount of people who play Gunner always seem to go statue as soon as they start to shoot at something and its only a matter of time before a sniper or even a low life basic soldier nails you in the cranium and has you standing infront of the nearest purchase panel..... If any of you who are just starting out wonder why your always the one with -200 ladder points and have died 100+ times during a 30 minute game, and for some reason are the victim of a phantom ramjet shells, well, now you know..... The second most important tactic is...throw Monty Python lines to everyone (F2) when they are least expected...ex. you are a chem warrior who wastes a GDI engy: I fart in your general direction!ex2. Nod makes a failed flamer rush: Leave at once you silly English kniggets, or I shall tanut you a second time!

Move or die. If you're a sniper, shoot, move, shoot, move, etc.....And don't just move a couple of feet. Move to an entirely different location.

you know, I pizz myself off all the time because I'll hit another sniper while running and If I'm playing either Deadeye or the Nod sniper, I'll only lower their health by maybe half, and I KNOW that if I go back to that same spot the other sniper will kiss my head with a shell, but I do it anyways.....its the temptation that he never saw me.....I need to work on my will power because I'd say that 99.9\% of the time I die when sniping is because I go right back to same spot a second ago.....f**ing temptation I tells ya!
